

New Missions Department Headed By Wynkoop

Beginning with the 1970-'71 school year, Trevecca Nazarene College will offer for the first time, a major in Missions. This major will come under the newly formed department of Missions, Anthropology, and Sociology, to be headed by Dr. Mildred Wynkoop.

According to Dr. Wynkoop, "The new major is designed for anyone wishing to become aware of the areas of human needs in today's world and desiring direction in achieving a full and satisfying involvement in the lives of people."

Students wishing a major in Missions will begin by completing the lower division General Education requirements during which time an introductory course in Missionary Anthropology will lay the foundation for later work. The major field of 45 credit hours will begin in the upper division years. A second major of at least 45 hours will be selected by the student from such fields as Anthropology, Sociology, Religion, Social Service, Education, Medical Technology, Business or Psychology. Specific courses not offered presently on the campus will be taken from local cooperating schools.

Emphasis will be given to very practical matters, from courses in the fields of Inner City problems and interracial relations, through the personal qualifications of the missionary himself and his maturation and emotional stability, to some kind of directed fieldwork at home or in some mission area abroad.

The teaching staff is qualified in specific fields of wide interest bringing together competence in many related areas and enlarged perspective to the student. Each year it is expected that at least one furloughing missionary with proper personal and academic qualifications will be on campus to teach and counsel those desiring the most up-to-date information and instruction possible.

The missions course is not restricted to those with special calls but is open to anyone who wishes to make an effective contribution to Christian outreach in the 20th century.

Six Representing Trevecca At Student Conference

Mount Vernon Nazarene College will host the 7th annual NSLC from April 30 to May 3.

The NSLC has been active since 1964. Each year a different Nazarene College serves as host for the conference.

Each college sends a Dean of Student Life and/or the Stuco sponsor as faculty and administration representatives.

Student representatives from the colleges consist of the Stuco president, president elect, and two other students.

Another member of the conference is the Executive Secretary of Education Willis Snowbarger.

All of the above are voting delegates. Others may attend but cannot vote.

Trevecca's student representatives for this year are: Charles Davis (pres.), Dennis Moore (pres.-elect), Bob Brower (vice-pres.-elect), Ron Shingleton (CWA) and alternate David Blue (Christian Outreach).

Each year the conference takes up different topics in its seminars. The content of these seminars often determines who shall represent the colleges.

Since this year's topics will concern such programs as revitalizing Christian Outreach into the city and churches as well as campus ministry, the representatives were selected accordingly.

Other topics on the agenda will deal with the student council's relation to the administration and to the student body. Also to be discussed is the subject of student government and mass media.

The conference will also have to discuss business. This will include things such as where to have the next meeting, electing a new president and discussing the future of the NSLC.

The NSLC's primary purpose is to orient new student leaders. This orientation comes through the channels already mentioned and also through the more informal times of "sharing" experiences.

"Dawn Of A Decade" Festival Theme

The annual Student Council sponsored "Festival of Ideas" is going into the final stages of preparation for the scheduled May 12, 13, and 14 program.

With the theme of "The Dawn of A Decade" three well known speakers will lecture in the three consecutive chapel series.

Bob Johnson, former All-American football player at U.T. and now a pro football player with the Cincinnati Bengals, will be the opening speaker. Mr. Johnson is a businessman in the off-season and is associated with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Mr. E. D. Mohlere will present the lecture on Thursday, May 13. Mohlere is Director for University Affairs at NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center, near Huntsville, Alabama. He will deal with the future of the U.S. Space program.

Concluding the Festival on Friday will be Avon Williams, a prominent black attorney here in Nashville. Williams is a member of the Tennessee State Legislature. His speech will deal with what can be expected in the coming decade in the area of race relations.

Marshall Duke, Chairman of the Festival, stated that "The purpose of such a series is to inform the student body in topics of current interest. It is hoped that students may be provoked in considering and thinking on the areas which our speakers present."

Duke continued by saying, "We are as an institution, city, state, nation and world in the process of venturing in a decade of unknowns. We shall look to our speakers in an attempt to gain an understanding of what they see as lying ahead."

Following each lecture, time will be provided for questions for the lecturer.

In the past the Festival of Ideas has brought speakers in such fields as: philosophy, politics, medicine, theology, and science.

"Let's let this year's Festival provoke us to do a little thinking during the Festival with an unprejudiced mind, eager to learn something," concluded Duke.

Executive Stuco Selected by 76 Percent Turnout

By Mark Dougharty

The seventy-six percent turnout to the polls for the 1971-72 elections is a compliment to the entire student body. Throughout the campaign there was an air of enthusiasm and competitiveness that made the elections more interesting. The final results were:

President—Dennis Moore
Vice-President—Bob Brower
Secretary—Paulette Johnson
Treasurer—Edith Reece
Trev-Echoes Editor — John Teter

Darda Editor — Robert Garber
Dennis Moore, a junior this year, has served on numerous committees and has been the Trev-Echoes editor. He is from Lake Worth, Florida, where his father is minister of the Nazarene church there. Moore is a Speech-English major.

Vice President-elect Bob Brower is a Sophomore majoring in history. He has served on the Student Council and is floor monitor for the third floor of Tennessee Hall. His major job will be to head the Inter-Club Council and take over in the president's absence.

Next year's Student Council secretary Paulette Johnson is a junior, majoring in English and elementary education. Miss Johnson is from Miami, Florida. Her special interests are drawing and English Literature.

The current treasurer of the sophomore class, Edith Reece was elected as the treasurer for the coming year. She is an elementary education major from Atlanta, Georgia. Miss Reece will be in charge of all the funds for the Student Council including the money for the All-School Project.

John Teter, a junior from Punta Gorda, Florida, will be next year's Trev-Echoes Editor. Teter

CIVITAN BLOOD DRIVE TODAY

Friday, May 1, between 1:00 and 7:00 p.m., the Red Cross mobile unit will be on campus, set up in the Physical Education Center, to receive blood donations. This blood drive is sponsored by the Trevecca Collegiate Civitan Club. Civitan Rick Engor is responsible for this campus project.

About six million units of blood are used each year in the nation. Donations from seventeen percent of the Student Body (about 100 students) will provide coverage for the entire student body for one year. In order to donate blood, a student must either be twenty-one or have written parental consent if between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one. Donors can give blood at intervals of at least eight weeks, but not more than five times annually.

Those students or faculty members who plan to donate should register with Civitan members for a preferred time during the allotted hours. Anyone donating should eat a good meal prior to the donation. Donors should be prepared to spend about thirty minutes for the procedure which involves a short interview, a physical examination, the donation, and a light snack.

DORM PLANNED FOR TNC

Plans are being made for a new building on campus. Mr. Ramon Richards, Business Manager at Trevecca, has made some comments on this proposed action.

"The college has applied for federal funds for the construction of a 48-unit married student apartment complex. Tentative plans call for these apartments to be located behind Tidwell Hall facing Hart Street. It will be a 'U' design consisting of three 16-apartment units."

"The apartments will be used for single students and/or married students depending on the need at the time of occupancy. It is anticipated that these apartments will be completed prior to September '71. The government will advise the college the first part of July as to whether Trevecca will be granted the funds necessary for this project."

Come to Grips With Campus Communication

"The big problems facing higher education today are future costs, both financial and social," declared Hugh D. Galusha, Jr., the president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis.

Colleges and universities must "come to grips" with the future social costs by involving trustees, administrators, students and faculties in deciding future goals, he said. "There will never be a point when the job is finished. There must be a transmittal of concern from generation to generation."

At Trevecca it is easy to realize the financial problems for the future, but it has not been easy for all to realize the social problems concerned with the college and its future.

To look back on the past year it is possible to see crisis after crisis with administrative-faculty-student problems. For example: the cafeteria and food service, the Lyceum Committee, release of some members of the faculty, tuition hikes, Late Minutes, the Choralaires traveling, and many others.

It has been unfortunate that each of the conflicting groups have not always taken the time to observe the problem from "the other man's shoes." Most people involved with Trevecca Nazarene College want to see a blossoming dynamic religious liberal arts institution, but are blinded from the goal many times by thoughtless communication failures.

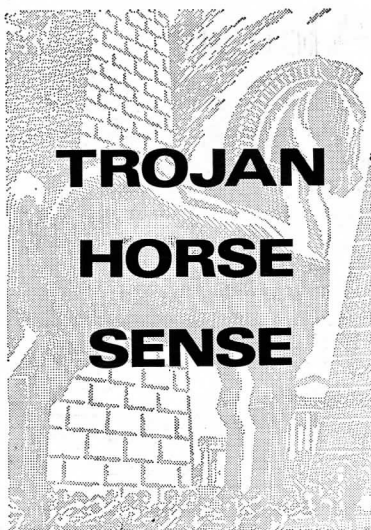

For the most part the Student-Faculty Forum has not met the need of the students because of generally infrequent meetings and a failure of student representatives to report the discussions to respective classes. Perhaps also there should be more faculty representation, to speak for that facet of the campus community. Thought should also be given to renaming the forum to "Student-Faculty-Administrative Forum".

Perhaps when problems arise the Forum should meet to iron out the differences and "whys" of the particular representation having difficulty. Meetings called during times of crisis could be open to the public in a large meeting area.

To further aid "campus communication" it would seem advantageous to also form small dialogue groups with administrators, faculty, and students to discuss crisis areas.

Hugh Galusha, at Carleton College of Minnesota in similar communication network, said that "each of the groups represented in the Forum learned a great deal about the jobs of the others, thus making the participants, especially student members, more aware of the obligations faced by the college administrators. As a result, the students became more responsible."

"Faculty members involved in the Forum also have begun to think about and recognize the problems of the institution, instead of spending all their time on their individual disciplines, Galusha concluded.

TROJAN HORSE SENSE

An Award

The award for Outstanding Preparedness will have to go to Interstate United for the work they did during the week that we had so many guests on the campus. It is absolutely amazing how long guests and students were kept awaiting for glasses, silverware, salad bowls, and even for the main course.

It may have been that the Cafeteria manager was not notified that there would be so many extra for the Tuesday evening meal, but that does not justify running out of roast beef on Wednesday night. Nor does it justify the fact that this takes place even when there are no guests on campus.

What most students are wondering is how long the administration is going to keep renewing the contract of a company, who has for three years in a row proven its inabilities. Why must the student have to constantly put up with inferior quality meals, dirty dishes, and untimely service, especially since for the last three years the price of the meal plan has increased?

It should be obvious to the administration that students are dissatisfied with the services which have been offered. But the students felt sure the administration knew their feeling last year and the only result the student saw was a bigger contract for Interstate United. Perhaps the deciding committee thought on this year and the past two as a trial period. In the evaluation of the student body, Interstate United has failed this test and should be relieved of its responsibilities for next year.

The students are not concerned with what kind of profit-sharing policy the company has, and the students are not concerned with how much money the college can make off the meal plan. We are concerned with the quality of the service, the quality of the food, and the cleanliness of the environment. The students would like to invite and administrator to pay $150.00 for the meal plan and eat twenty-one meals a week in our cafeteria for ten weeks and then think about whether it is worth it.

Former TNC Student Elected Prexy

A former Trevecca student has been elected Student Body President at Scarritt College in Nashville. Harold Smith, who is working on a Masters program in Evangelism, won the position after attending only one year at Scarritt.

As a 1969 graduate, Smith was Senior Class President while at Trevecca. His immediate plans now call for a career in missions and marriage in September to Trevecca student Janie Andrews.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Response

Dear Editor:

In regard to Dr. Parry's letter I would like to express my views and opinions. This letter is not directed to him in any way, but it is directed to the matter which was brought up. I totally disagree with his inference that Trevecca students are against too much. On the contrary they are rarely for or against anything to any great degree. What National or World issue has Trevecca taken a stand for or against? None! Are we short sighted enough to believe that religion alone will cure the ills of the world? Will it by itself curb our population; stop our wars, feed our hungry, ease our racial tensions, clean our environment, and quiet our college students who see problems we have ignored? Religion by itself cannot!! It is a most powerful force, but God said He would help those who help themselves. Is sitting quietly on this hill, pretending the world has no problems aiding our fellow man?

As a student here I am concerned that there are not more stands against the issues. After all isn't this what life is made up of—determining what is true, just and right against what is untrue, unjust and wrong. If we do not confront the issues then we have ceased to function as intelligent beings. We would then be like a computer who simply accepts information, takes no investigation, no question and seldom does little for the rest of the machinery around it.

One who sits and counts the number of things we are for as compared to those we are against misses the point of the case entirely.

After thinking about these issues I have to state that I am still against "war, racism, poverty, corruption" and many more. I am not opposing them just for the sake of being against them. I oppose them because I feel they are wrong. No other reason is necessary. I challenge the rest of the student body to speak out. State your opinion both verbally and enthusiastically Take part in the issues and get involved, least we suffer the dreadful consequences confronting our school, nation and world.

Letters are opinions of the writers. All letters must be submitted one week prior to publication and not exceed 300 words.

Thank you for listening,
David Digby

To All T.N.C.

Dear Editor:

In the course of "justice," we are often influenced by frustration caused by the inadequacies and incompetence of others. I feel that such has been reflected in my case.

Because of my weakness in faith in God, brought on by an immediate environment of sin here on campus, I was driven to speak some untruths. A weakness in faith is something we all must confront as young Christians. We must not bow to this weakness as I did. I have now confessed my sins to God and He has forgiven me, but it seems as if when I try to make restitution to those whom I sinned against, they forget their full obligations as Christians. I have gone to those who have passed judgement upon me. But I am no thief and since my confessions to God and my judges, I am no liar. I was no habitual liar before.

I am not being judged wrongly by those who are my real friends and know my real history. I think we should all pray more, and help each other more.

I prayed, I asked for help from my superiors, but received none.

Your brother in Christ,
Allen Massingille

READY FOR FREEDOM?

By John Teter

This is the age of enlightenment. Freedom to question ideas and hear new views is the battle cry. TNC, like so many other colleges, is hearing the call for this type of freedom to a larger degree than we now enjoy. This brings up the question: are we really ready for more of this freedom and its ramifications?

Two points should be clarified before continuing: first, "we" represents the entire Trevecca community and not any one segment. Second, this is not saying that we have none of this freedom now, but is merely questioning if we are ready for more. Thus, this is not an attack on any person or group, merely an exercising of the aforementioned "freedom".

Now, are we ready for more of this freedom? Are we ready to look at the theories and ideas on which our lives are built? Are we willing to listen to someone who may not share our views or our background? Are we willing to discard anything that may not stand up to new knowledge and examination?

These are just a few of the questions which must be faced with an increase of this freedom. In order to have a larger degree of freedom in this area people outside of our own little circle will have to be heard. We do not have to accept what they say, but we should hear them. Listening to some opposite view may help us see more clearly the value of our own ideas.

Suppose, however, that in exploring some new source to examine a pet idea, we see there is no support for that idea. What then? Would the pain of discarding it be so great that we would rather keep it? Would our reply be, "Do not confuse me with the facts, my mind is made up"?

As we stated before, we have a certain amount of this freedom now. The call for more is constantly with us, however, and must be faced. The question that must be answered first is: are we really ready for more of this freedom and are we willing to accept the ramifications such an increase may have in our lives?

Freedom of Expression

While visiting our campus, Dr. Timothy Smith said something that has provoked some thought on my part for the last few days. He said, in essence, that the advantage of the small church-related college lay in the fact that it is church related. He went on to point out that since most of us were raised in the church, when we come to school, we never leave behind our background or upbringing. Thus when some of the major conflicts arise that must be settled personally, we, the church related college student, must make these decisions while reconciling them with our background. If this training were not so ever-present, the natural tendency is to "cop out." Notice he did not say the church relationship provided all the answers, but only implied that the decisions we reach are probably realistic for us individually since we didn't resort to escapism.

The more I think of this, I realize that he has struck on what might be an unnoticeable truth. Yet there is a danger lurking in the shadows. This idea is valid only when different ideas are allowed expression. The conflicts referred to are the same age old questions of life. Naturally, there are several sides to each problem. For one to make this decision and it be valid as Dr. Smith described it, there must be a freedom to express or have expressed these other ideas.

Granted we have free speech and an open policy of academic freedom. But what would happen if a group wanted to bring a person in to speak who was known to be in direct opposition to our social, political, or religious concepts? Would we have the freedom that other campuses are in the streets fighting for?

This might be an extreme test case, but we must be careful to take full opportunity of the advantage described by Dr. Smith. This confrontation of ideas is education; anything less is indoctrination.

Care With Alction

Joe Bullock shares a few minutes of his time with the boys at the Juvenile Home.

Care With Action. These words describe the Christian Worker's Association. The participants of this organization are those on campus who reflect genuine care and, as a result, respond to consistent action. The purpose of the organization is to stimulate total participation by all students in order to improve Trevecca's relations with the local churches, the community, and the students themselves.

At present there are five projects in progress. All five leave McClurkan Hall on Sunday.

The visit to the Metro Workhouse is made by several men each Sunday. Here at the Workhouse the members of the Association hold regular Sunday morning services for men who are serving time for various crimes. These men can be dealt with on an individual basis and some are won to Christ.

The Meharry Hospital workers go on Sunday afternoon to share the message of Christ with the patients of this Negro hospital. Here the work is strictly individual to individual with the workers having prayer, a brief talk of comfort or gospel witness, and scripture reading.

Those workers who go to the city jail hold regular evangelistic-type services.

Young kids, teen-agers who have "messed up" and have been arrested for wrong-doing are given a wide area of interest by the Christian workers. Some of these kids show signs of frustration, some of rebellion at the knocks they have had in life, some indifference, and others are searching for something better than they have experienced. The challenge is great to the workers at the Juvenile Home to offer to these young people the opportunity to face life on a new level—with Christ in their hearts.

The last project is the one which goes to Grace Rest Home. These workers make their visits each Sunday afternoon.

As can be seen, this Association is a growing, active organization. The projects are a means for each student to serve Christ and others.

COLLEGIATE CIVITAN CONVENTION

The Valley district Civitan Convention met at Jackson, Tennessee at the Ramada Inn, April 24-25. Although the Valley district has only been organized for one year it had more gains in the number of clubs than any other district. The purpose of this convention was to nominate officers for next year. It also provided a time for the Miss Collegiate Civitan Contest based on beauty and Civinette of the year. Seven students from Trevecca who are in the Civitan and Civinette Clubs went to the convention. Leroy Peper, district governor, and Faith Bradley, district corresponding secretary, went Larry Dennis, Carmel Robinson, John Baird, Gary Holt, and Becky Boswell were delegates. Miss Robinson participated in the Miss Collegiate Civitan Contest and in the talent contest.

The convention began Friday afternoon with registration after which there was a steak dinner. The talent contest and Miss Collegiate Civitan contest were held Friday night. Business sessions with nominations, speeches, and elections took place Saturday morning. After the luncheon Leroy Peper, governor this year, gave a speech on the district activities during the past year, and the new governor, Randal Burton, gave his acceptance speech.

As Trevecca's candidate for District Treasurer, Faith Bradley was elected to that office. Also announced in the Saturday proceedings were those chosen as Civitan and Civinette of the Year for the district. Faith was selected as Civinette of the Year, an award based on the contribution an individual member has made to Collegiate Civitan.

Faith has served in the local club as chairman of the community projects committee and was the co-ordinator of the club's work with the girls from the Tennessee Vocational School. As a district officer, Faith has actively participated in the organization of several new Collegiate Civitan clubs as well as working in nearly every other district activity.

Campus Co-eds

By Linda Sartin

Sketch: Martha Sartin

Recently "Glamour" magazine interviewed the top fashion designers to find out how the average person could buy the right clothes for her life. This is a problem we all face. If you keep saying you have nothing to wear, not because your closet is empty but because what's there doesn't seem to work, the little checklist here, put out by "Glamour" magazine, might help you to become a smarter shopper.

1. Does this dress, shirt, skirt, have double-life possibilities? Could it be worn to work and for a casual date too?
2. Do you have something to go with it—shoes, belt, scarf?
3. If you're buying separates—sweater, shirt, skirt—do you have at least two other separates to wear with them?
4. Do you feel comfortable in it?
5. Will you have more than one opportunity to wear this?
6. Does it fit to perfection? If not, is the alteration it will take really worth the effort and the price?
7. Last, do you really, really, like it? (you may just be tired of shopping and you're buying it only because it will "do").

INTRAMURAL ACTION

BY DENNIS SNODGRASS

BETA'S BEAT ALPHAS

It was a run scoring contest between the Alphas and Betas with the Betas coming out on top 18 to 16.

The game had many hits and many errors as it was not a good day for pitchers. It was a slug fest from start to finish. An Alpha rally fell two runs short in the bottom of the seventh inning. In the inning the Big "A" scored ten runs and the Beats made about as many errors.

DELTAS BOW TO GAMMAS

The Gammas downed the Deltas 9 to 7. The big inning was the second when four errors, two hit batsmen, and a triple by Bill Griggs were protecting a 9 to 3 lead going into the seventh inning when the Deltas went to work with three hits and four runs but their rally fell short and the Gammas had their second victory of the season.

ALPHAS SLIP BY GAMMAS

The Alpha society downed the Gammas 7 to 6 in one of the better games of the young season.

The Gammas leading 4 to 1 going into the sixth inning were hindered by a freak play which opened the door for the Alphas as they went ahead 5 to 4. In the top of the seventh inning the Gammas regained the lead 6-5 but a Alpha rally capped by the winning blow of the bat of Eric Kesselring gave the Alphas a 7 to 6 victory.

BETAS CRUSH DELTAS

20 to 10

The Betas scored 20 runs in six innings to down the Deltas 20 to 10. The Betas were led by Randy Smith who had four hits, one a grand slam home run. The Delta attack lacked the spark and punch it has had in the past.

The Betas have a solid all round team and looks like the team to win this season.

FROM THE COACH'S POINT OF VIEW

By Sharon Cronise

The Health and Physical Education program at Trevecca is fairly new and is still expanding. From a recent interview with Coach Green, the head of the department, we get a look at the purpose of the program and new things in the making for the future.

Concerning the TAA, next year every student will automatically become a member of the association and will be placed on one of the four societies. Rather than having dues the school will give the association a budget with which to operate its functions. Coach Green feels that being in the intramural program is important to the general education of the student and that everyone should be allowed to participate.

The renovation of the athletic field was also discussed. Future plans are to hopefully provide facilities for all intramural activities on campus. This will eventually include two softball diamonds, four tennis courts, a baseball diamond and a football field. These facilities will aid in school spirit and will provide recreational activities as well.

Although a major in Health and Physical Education will not be offered next year, the department is growing. Dr. Laura Donoho from the University of Illinois (Urbana) will be added to the faculty. She will teach professional and activity courses and will help in the women's intramural program. The department is working toward providing a major by the fall of 1971.

Coach Green says that the department is trying to make physical education practical and a reality to the students. Students in such courses as First Aid and Life Saving not only learn the course material but receive the Red Cross card in these areas. The school is striving to offer a general education in these areas of health and physical education: a program for majors and minors and activities for intramural and intercollegiate participants.

In closing Coach Green said that he enjoys the close connection his job provides with the student and feels that he is receiving satisfaction by helping to make a major or a minor possible in a Nazarene college which he was unable to obtain.

Intercollegiate Golf Results

TNC's primer Intercollegiate Golf team is off to a fast start in its first year. So far our six competitors have compiled a team record of two wins, three losses, and one tie. With a twelve game schedule, to cope with, our men face such teams as Belmont and David Lipscomb, and others just as rough on the course. Although our men may not end the season on a winning note, they are gaining valuable experience for future golfing years here at Trevecca.
