Seniors Leave Today For Gatlinburg Retreat

January 16 is the scheduled departure date for the 1970 Senior Class Retreat. The class, accompanied by several faculty members, will leave on Friday for Gatlinburg, Tennessee. The group will stop in Johnson City for the Trojan basketball game against Johnson City Bible College.

Lodging for the two nights will be at the River Terrace Motel in Gatlinburg.

Saturday morning and afternoon will allow visits to places of individual choice, such as the ski resort which features a chair lift, sledding, ice skating, as well as the Christus Gardens, the site as skiing. The group may visit of paintings and sculptures featuring the life of Christ.

Evening activities will include viewing of slides of class activities from the past three years, followed by a short devotional.

On Sunday morning, the group will have a morning worship as a class with Dr. Lloyd Byron as guest speaker. Dr. Byron was chaplain of the college when members of the Class of '70 were freshmen.

The return to Nashville will follow Sunday dinner.

Red Cross Soliciting Volunteers

918 American men are missing and another 413 are being held prisoner by the North Vietnamese. Red Cross societies around the world are urging that humane treatment be given these men. The American Red Cross has asked people of the United States to write the president of the Republic of North Vietnam to express concern over Hanoi's failure to give captured U.S. military personnel proper treatment.

The Geneva Conventions call for all prisoners to be promptly identified, given an adequate diet and medical care, permitted to communicate with other prisoners and the "exterior", promptly repatriated if seriously sick or wounded, and protected at all times from abuse or reprisals.

The Government of North Vietnam is signatory to the Conventions. Red Cross hopes that a public outcry might do much to ensure that American prisoners receive the humane treatment called for in the Conventions. It urged that appeals be addressed to:

Office of the President
Democratic Republic of North Vietnam
Hanoi, North Vietnam

An airmail letter weighing less than one-half ounce takes 25 cents in postage, the Red Cross added.

The National Shakespeare Company brings Macbeth to Trevecca as the second Artist Series Program. The performance is scheduled for 8:00 p.m., January 24 in McClurkan Auditorium.

National Shakespeare Company To Present "Macbeth" for TAS

The Trevecca Artist Series presents the National Shakespeare Company's Macbeth on January 24, at 8:00 p.m. in McClurkan Auditorium.

Traveling since 1963, the National Shakespeare Company performs three new productions in repertory each year. The company provides historical costumes and imaginative settings as well as a professional acting ensemble.

The National Shakespeare

Company has been hailed by papers across the nation and has been called "the ablest professional Shakespeare company touring around the country."

The National Shakespeare Company travels widely in its annual tours. Last year the company performed to over 250,000 people and covered 30,000 miles.

Admission to Macbeth will be I.D. card for students and $1.00 general admission for all others.

PSYCH-OUT REAL LIFE GAME

(ACP—MSU News, Michigan State Univ., East Lansing, Mich. A game about the games people play has been designed by three students at Michigan State University.

Psych-Out: a Game of Human Relations, is the brainchild of Jonathan Cooper, former MSU student and now a graduate student at the University of West Virginia.

Cooper turned in a rough form of the game as a project for an MSU undergraduate psychology course in fall 1967.

The Psych-Out game board has three concentric tracks which surround the goal. Four to six players try to move from the outermost track to the center.

Along the way, players draw Tranquility Cards and Anxiety Cards. These outline experiences encountered in dating, friendship and family relations. The player who draws the card must construct a story from the outline. The other must "psych out" the storyteller and decide if his story is fact or fiction.

"The game is really pretty Freudian, in that it can bring out some ugly things about people," James J. Moriarty, one of the designers, said. "Jonathan (Cooper) and I don't really feel that way now; I guess it's what we were interested in then. If we made up a new game, it would be more positive."

The game was designed to resemble actual life as closely as possible. Moriarty said. The frustration and anger and pleasure are all felt in real life in the same situations that occur in Psych-Out.

Moriarty and Cooper are trying to sell Psych-Out to a game manufacturer at present. The two do not anticipate becoming millionaires from the sales of the game. Moriarty said that he

Trevecca One Day Registration Proves Mildly Successful

As of January 9, 1970 616 students had registered for Winter Quarter. Of these 616, six are new students, seventeen are transfer students, and thirteen are former students. Twenty-five other students have applied but to this date have not registered.

It is too early as yet to draw any definite conclusions about the effect of accreditation upon the enrollment, but there is no doubt that there are some students who would not have come if accreditation had not been achieved. This is also evidenced in the high number of retentions. There is normally a drop of 10% or more between Fall and Winter Quarter. This year, however, the drop was only slightly 4%.

Mr. E. Drell Allen, registrar of the College, said, "Registration problems were relatively few," but, "admittedly, some inconvenience was experienced as a result of lines." He also said that a number of students came earlier than the time previously set for their registration. It should also be considered that:

1. Registration was accomplished in one day rather than three days as it was in the Fall.

2. 583 students were registered on Monday alone as compared to a previous record of 320 registered in one day.

3. Registration in at least one of its phases was open for nine hours or 540 minutes. This means that less than one minute was used for each student overall.

There was some inconvenience, but there was less time wasted. As a result of this economy of time, spring break may be taken over Easter time without the school year.

In the words of Mr. Allen, "Registration is a dynamic process, always under study for new and better ways." He feels that definite progress was made in changing to a one-day registration and that observations made during this registration will aid in further improvement in Spring registration.

Encounters Featured At Conference

The Encounters, Trevecca's musical public relations group, were featured in the annual quadrennial Conference of Evangelism yesterday in Kansas City, Missouri.

The group, which traveled by chartered plane, performed before a large youth rally held in the Music Hall of the Kansas City Municipal Auditorium. They were also later featured in the closing service of the day for the general conference.

Dr. John L. Knight, Secretary of Evangelism for the Church of the Nazarene, was the general presiding officer for the Conference; while Mr. Paul Skiles, Secretary of Youth, was in charge of the teen rally and activities.

The Encounters were the only musical representatives from any of the denominations nine major educational institutions.

The group which left early Thursday returned late that same night.

Rabbi Speaks To Stucco Assembly

Dr. Randall M. Falk of the Temple in Nashville, Tennessee represented the Jewish Chautauqua Society as lecturer at Trevecca Nazarene College on Thursday, January 8, 1970. The rabbi lectured in assembly on the subject "The American Jew Looks as the Middle East Crisis."

The rabbi lectures on college campuses under the auspices of the Jewish Chautauqua Society, an organization which creates better understanding of Jews and Judaism through education. The Jewish Chautauqua Society is sponsored by the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods.

Iowa State Students Learn How To Study

(ACP)—Iowa State Daily, Ames. Some students have the ability to successfully take examinations and some don't.

Those who do not have the talent find themselves with a real headache, often bordering on near-panic.

Marianne McManus, an assistant professor and psychologist in the counseling service at Iowa State, believes that examination taking is an art. There are many who will agree with her.

"A good exam-taker," she said, "has real know-how, he

Plans Made For Board of Trustees Feb. 9-11

The regular annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of Trevecca Nazarene College will be called to order by its Chairman, Dr. Otto Stucki, on Wednesday, February 11 at 9:00 A.M. Preceding this meeting the Executive Committee will meet on Monday, February 9, and the various committees of the Board on Tuesday, February 10.

Of particular interest to students is a new committee recommended by President Mark R. Moore and the Executive Committee and approved by the entire Board of Trustees. This committee is known as the STUDENT AFFAIRS COMMITTEE of the Board of Trustees. It will deal with loans, scholarships and any other items that relate to student needs.

AND NOW THE REALITY OF IT ALL

Probably now after a month and a half the jubilation of Trevecca's accreditation has worn down to the reality of acceptance. But it will be extremely difficult to forget that astonishing afternoon when the news of accreditation spread across the campus faster than a rumor about the latest couple who had severed their relationship. Nor will it be easy to forget that tremendous turnout of students at the airport to meet the school's top two leaders. There was tremendous pride as the Alma Mater was sung again and again throughout various areas of the campus.

But now s time wears on and the jubilation wears off it is necessary to evaluate some of the problems which accreditation has not magically rid us of.

Most administrators would probably admit that the problems of finances are still in very serious condition. It is extremely unwise to think that accreditation will automatically bring the much needed monies that are so desperately needed. The Board must not stop now on their Doallar A Year Program—as a matter of fact it appears as though more work could be done by many members of the Board of Trustees and others.

Enrollment is another matter which still must have much serious consideration. Those 800 students predicted for the new academic year will not come unless new and unique recruitment ideas are continued to be implemented.

And now Trevecca must keep an equal balance of a school for the students for the school. For too long emphasis has been on the students for the school idea.

Some students have even expressed the idea that it is conceivable that administrators will be less likely to listen to problems and yield to student desires because Trevecca is accredited, the idea being that now it is not necessary to worry about students leaving for there will be many more to replace the ones lost.

This editorial is not mean to downgrade any particular group or individual but rather to show that many problems are still present and are yet to be resolved. Most of the Trevecca staff would agree that accreditation is not everything, but like money, it sure helps.

Pepper Recalls NEA Experience

By Leroy Pepper

Finally I have a chance to share with you, in detail, a dream come true—Nazarene Evangelistic Ambassadors

I faintly remember learning something about this program during my high school years. But my first hand encounter with the Ambassadors came during the summer following graduation. I still remember clearly that Sunday afternoon at International Institute in Estes Park, Colorado. There, in a special service, I heard the "Ambassador Song" for the first time:

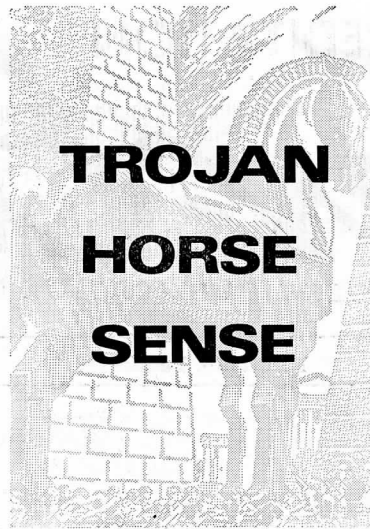

"We are Ambassadors
Sent by the King of Kings;
We have good news for you—
Jesus salvation brings!

Trust in the Savior now;
Old things will pass away,
All things will become new.
Trust in Christ today!"

Something about that song and the spirit of the young men who were singing it thrilled me to the core. Along with probably every other one of those 1200 Nazarene teens, I decided that I wanted to someday be a part of the Nazarene Evangelistic Ambassadors.

That idea faded into the background of my memory as I entered Trevecca the next fall, but I never completely forgot about it. The challenges and responsibilities of college life were new to me and they seemed to

A New Hope

Welcome to the new year. We have crossed the threshold and are now in a new decade. The seventies stretch before us and wait to see what we will make of them. Many new challenges and opportunities will confront us in this decade and open the way for our advancement.

TNC also stands looking at this new decade and the possibilities for her advancement. The granting of full accreditation as last year ended has given new hope to all who envision TNC as a great school. The fact of accreditation is now with us, but what is the real effect of it on TNC? Is it an end or does it just establish a starting point?

This is by no means meant to play down the value of accreditation. This is still a landmark in Trevecca's history and deserved all of the celebration and joy which greeted it. It is not, however, a magic cure-all. The financial problem is still with us. The need for a larger student body is still with us. Some of the problems that cause concern among students are still with us. The difference is we now have a new weapon with which to fight these problems.

Perhaps an accredited school will seem to be worth more effort by the churches to pay their budgets. Those working with the D.A.Y. program may find it easier to sell an accredited school to their contacts. Some companies with matching fund donation programs give only to accredited schools. These are a few possible ways accreditation can help meet the financial needs.

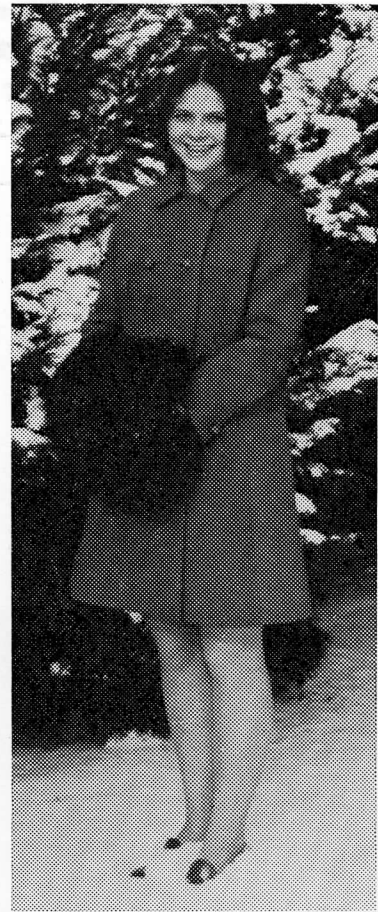

Student recruitment received a big boost with the granting of accreditation. The enrollment should be well up by next fall due to this. A larger student body will also help in the financial area. The students benefit since they will find it easier to enter graduate school and some fields of work since they attended an accredited school.

The problems that concern students may also get more attention and thus benefit from accreditation. The administrators and others who have had to devote their main energies to acquiring accreditation may now have more time to spend trying to iron out some of the problem areas which have had to wait their turn.

The new decade promises much for Trevecca and her supporters. The receiving of full accreditation has opened the door to what can be a bright future. Now it is up to all of us who love and support her to do our best to take full advantage of the opportunity. The newest student to the oldest alumni can all have a part in making these the best years ever for Trevecca.

Campus Co-eds

By Linda Sartin

Miss Barbara Sartin

(Pictured)

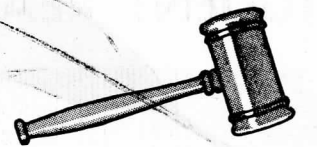

This is the month for snow and snow and more snow. The fashionable girl must dress warm as well as smart. There is probably more variety right now than there has ever been in fashion history. You have a heaven-sent chance to improvise, indulge your fantasy, and try out different looks for different moods. You can discover what becomes you best, makes you feel at ease, suits your particular temperament, and keeps you warm from the cold winter winds.

Some of the campus coeds are bravely coming out with a maxi. You have probably never worn anything long before except a housecoat or evening gown. Why not go expressed for practical purposes in coats for cold weather or rain and in party clothes. If you are able to splurge and buy a maxi, be sure and select a becoming one for today's fashions. Bright colors are out!

Following a fashion period of hectic color—the hue or the print compensating for the absence of interesting shape—both colors and patterns have calmed down. This means that the obvious contrast is out, and you have to develop a new approach to putting colors together. For example, the traditional masculine fabrics are indiscreet herringbones, Donegal tweeds, Glen and hounds-tooth checks, chalk stripes, small tie prints, plain flannel, covert, and camels hair. The chief point is that the vivid psychedelic colors are almost passe in coats and accessories.

Also, another popular fashionable warmer for this season will be the muff. Toss out the gloves and look chic with a fur muff. They range from $5.00 to $50.00, made from man-made fur, rabbit, or the most elegant-dyed fox. They may be carried to class, a concert, or church.

Whether it be a maxi or a muff, this season dress warm as well as fashionable.

Gavel Garble

By Charles Davis

At the last town meeting, the question was raised as to why student teachers and those who miss meals because of work have to buy a full meal plan. I persued the question through the Dean's office to the finance committee, and felt a public answer should be given.

As was explained to me, the school has a contract with Interstate United to buy a meal plan consisting of twenty-one meals. The school then resells this plan to our students, raising the price only enough to cover overhead expense. So if a partial plan was to be offered, the school would have to assume the loss, as they have no such arrangement with Interstate United.

While this answers the question, it by no means solves the problem. The Student Council has gone on record in favor of the school checking into some possible partial plans for the next school year. This feeling has also been expressed to the business manager of the college.

I am sure that our students understand our situation and will tolerate (not necessarily accept) this apparent injustice. However, I feel that the fact that we have shown our displeasure and registered our complaint with an urge for a more amiable solution in the near future speaks highly of our students.

This is our goal—to question, to try to understand, and to take the proper procedural steps when available to make Trevecca a "student's school, not a school for students."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR Proud Alumni

Dear Editor:

After having read and compared student newspapers from the other Nazarene colleges, I would like to congratulate you and your staff on your excellent paper. Newspapers from all Nazarene colleges and other institutions are sent here to the Seminary. I am very proud to have a quality paper such as the Trev-Echoes to represent Trevecca.

All Trevecca alumni and friends are extremely happy because of the recent news of accreditation. There was a celebration of sorts at Seminary when this was announced. The student body, faculty, and administration are to be congratulated in reaching this milestone.

Trevecca has much support here in Kansas City. I would say there is more spirit among Trevecca alumni than any other college. We are all interested in the Trojans and follow them closely.

Our prayers and thoughts are with you.

STUDENT REACTION TO ACCREDITATION

By Sandra Masters

V-I-C-T-O-R-Y!

There was much general excitement on December 3, 1969, due to the fact of Trevecca's acceptance into membership with the Southern Association. Upon talking with some of the students on campus, one may receive a more personalized reaction to this wonderful event.

Judy Tousley, a junior from Mississippi, said, "It means a new opening for the college—the opening of new doors. Accreditation means that I can now graduate from T.N.C., which means very much to me."

David Patterson, sophomore from Georgia, said very aptly, "It was definitely an answer to prayer!"

Becky Boswell, sophomore, from West Virginia: "Accreditation means that we can now have much better jobs as teachers. I probably would have had to transfer had T.N.C. not been accredited. It also means that the school will gain a lot more students instead of losing some, which is really an answer to prayer."

Brenda Murphree, sophomore, from Alabama: "I think it's great! If it was not for this, I could not teach in Alabama."

Diane Murphree, junior from Alabama: "I was glad we got accredited because Alabama will not allow you to teach unless you are accredited without a $300.00 cut in salary."

Accreditation is especially meaningful to graduating seniors. Lynda Taylor, from Nashville, said, "As a graduating senior I have had to worry about being accepted in graduate school. Many graduate schools no longer make any exceptions whatsoever if one graduates from an unaccredited college. Now I can feel free to further my education. Also if I decide to teach I am not restricted to certain states. Trevecca is a great college and now it can become greater."

JoAnne Fulwood, senior, from Florida, says, "I heard about accreditation a long time before I came to Trevecca, and many of my friends thought I was foolish to spend four years at a non-accredited college. I believe Christ means for us to trust Him in everything, even though it is extremely hard to do so. When you learn to love T.N.C. and what it stands for, then Dec. 3 is not only a day that brings joy and tears, but also a day that causes you to say, 'I'm glad I trusted Christ.'"

Florida, said "It really boosted Leroy Pepper, senior, from my morale! I will be teaching for a couple of years, and having a degree from an accredited college makes it easier for me to get temporary certification. It boosted my confidence in the program of the school. There's been a lot of times in the past few years when I have felt this strain of paying such high fees for an unaccredited school. But now I feel like it's worth it."

Anna Smith, sophomore, from Georgia, said, "Somehow, I felt all day Dec. 3 that we would become an accredited school. It was one of the most tense and exciting days in my life."

Jerome Hancock, a junior from West Virginia, perhaps "wrapped it all up" when he said, "All my life Trevecca had always seemed to be the college I would attend. However, my district had been selected to become a part of a new Mt. Vernon College zone. My father was on the board of the college, and suddenly to my surprise I found myself in a "foreign college," with my father bringing to my attention quite often Trevecca's lack of accreditation. Early this fall quarter, when Dr. Moore was giving the details of what was to take place as we move toward accreditation, I felt a certainty that success would be ours. On the day of accreditation I was on one of my jaunts to the library. In the quietness that permanently pervades throughout that fortress of knowledge I suddenly was stunned by shrieks and shouts emitting from that stately matron of the printed page, Mrs. Mackey. Jumping for joy in the lobby, she quickly regained her composure, strode into the reference room and in a cool, straight voice stated, 'I have good news. We are now members of the Southern Association.' She turned, walked out, and immediately resumed her shouting in the lobby. I guess you could say that's the way I felt about it, too!"

involve me twenty-five hours of the day.

As the fall of 1968 approached, I heard that the Nazarene Evangelistic Ambassadors were to travel again the following summer. The thrill and memories from International Institute began to return. I was eager to hear more about it. When, where, and how should I apply? Could it really be within the realm of possibilities for me?

Finally, in the month of November, Brad Moore presented the 1968 Nazarene Evangelistic Ambassadors program in a chapel service. This time the Ambassadors' tour was to include both Europe and Central America. I was excited! I got an application form and filled it out.

Thursday, January 16th, 1969: I'll never forget that day as long as I live! I was presiding in our Student Council chapel as well as being involved in the program for the day. Dr. Moore had asked me to give him time to make an announcement during the preliminary remarks. Under pressure I blew it and forgot to introduce him before the program began. Simple solution: he makes the announcement at the close of the chapel program. For some crazy reason everybody was standing when Dr. Moore began the announcement.

All that I really remember from that chapel program until June 3rd is a flurry of excited preparation. There were congratulations from every direction but with each of those offers, the weight of responsibility involved was being deeply impressed on me. Sure, this is an honor, but maybe it's more of an obligation than an honor. There were letters telling me how to prepare; what to read, what to buy, what to do. There were letters of getting acquainted with the staff members. There were pictures to be taken for publicity. I had to get my passports and the necessary vaccinations, then tend to a seemingly endless list of small details in preparation.

I wish that every student at Trevecca could share with me a special one of the experiences of those four or five months of preparation. As soon as I learned that I had been selected, I wrote out a list of the things that I knew I would need in order to be adequately prepared for the summer. And every time I discovered another need I added to the list. Within a period of about four months I saw God answer my prayers as I prayed for those specific needs and trusted him. Over four hundred dollars' worth of supplies came to me within that time. To me this was nothing short of a miracle. And God spoke to me about some miracles he had wanted to perform in my life before.

"Set your mind on God's kingdom and his justice before everything else and all

Public Relations Eye View of Accreditation

By Sharon Masters

"Rock of Gibraltar—the world was lifted off my shoulders." These were the words of Mr. W. T. Dougharty, Director of Development and Public Relations, when interviewed to find out his feelings and reactions toward Trevecca's accreditation. As far as Mr. Dougharty was concerned—he was released of many problems. His feelings, as most everyone else's, were undecipherable.

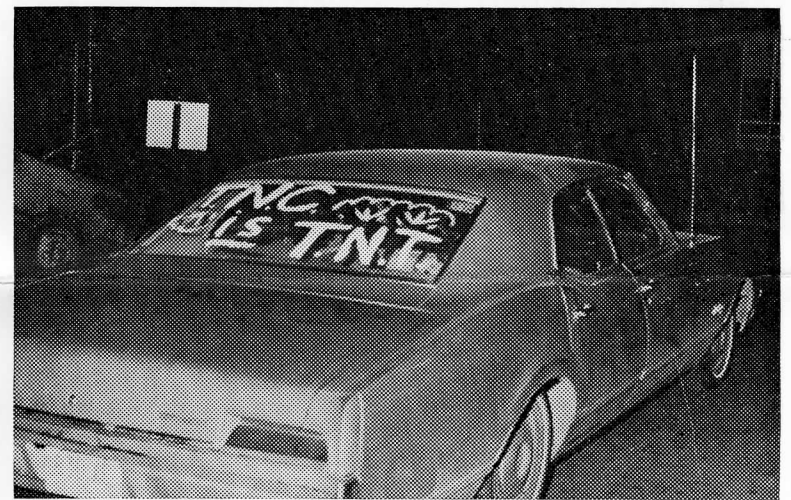

As of now, no expanding of new buildings and dormitories are being discussed. However, Mr. Dougharty did state that new dormitories would be constructed as the enrollment of students increased. The enrollment trend will continue to be reversed. Within the next ten years, Trevecca's enrollment should increase to 1,500 students.

Accreditation means it is going to be some easier to raise support for Trevecca. Since becoming accredited, we are eligible for funds. Nazarenes have greater faith in Trevecca—for no one likes to support a seemingly dying school. Financial support will also come much easier.

President and Mrs. Mark R. Moore's reaction to the accreditation resembles that of the students.

Telegrams from all over the nation were received on Wednesday, December 3, 1969, when everyone rejoiced with Dr. Mark Moore, Dean Stanton P. Parry and each student and member of the faculty at Trevecca Nazarene College. For once everyone at Trevecca was in one accord—for all shared the feeling of joy and pride.

Panes were taken to express TNC enthusiasm over accreditation.

has a knack or ability for writing examinations. On the other hand, there are a good many fine students with real ability who just can't prepare for or write a good examination. Some only lack knowledge of good techniques, but the overwhelming tension in others keeps them from performing at their best."

Psych-Out has uses other than entertainment. It has been used in an experimental psychology class and could be used in group therapy and sensitivity groups, Moriarty said.

"But it's not a game for everyone," he added. "People who are 'uptight' have played it, and they don't come back to play a second time. It's a terrific game for an icebreaker on blind dates, though."

TROJANS EASILY WIN DOUBLEHEADER OVER TOCCOA FALLS COLLEGE

Friday Night

The weather was cold but the Trevecca Trojans were blazing hot as they swept the Toccoa Falls Eagles 97-70 last Friday night. The action started quickly and continued at a rapid pace throughout the entire game as the deliberate Trojans showed another side of their personality by playing a quick striking offense. The vacancy left by the injured center, Mike Sexton, was filled by less known faces usually occupying the Trojan bench. Toccoa Falls never surrendered to the overpowering Trojans but bowed under the sharpshooting of Trevecca and the stable control of the boards.

The Trojans showed impressive power on their bench with such players as William Hassell, Neil Newton and the promoted starter, Clyde Spencer. Trojan fans saw the possible beginning of a new Boner strategy of a full playing squad. The Trojans enjoyed a slight height advantage over the rather young squad of Toccoa Falls. Going into the locker room at half time, the Trojans enjoyed a wide margin of almost twenty points.

Although the score would indicate a well controlled ball game, observers could readily see the dangers in a fast moving offensive front by the seemingly sloppy results of portions of play. On the whole, the Trojans showed a new face to their fans with the fast hitting offense, one which the Eagles of Toccoa Falls never got accustomed to. The Trojans move on with a record of 7 wins and 5 losses.

Saturday Night

The fired up Trevecca Trojans defeated Toccoa Falls Institute for the second time in two nights of play. It was an even game until the last ten minutes of the first half when the Trojans broke it open with a 20 point scoring spree as compared to a single basket by Toccoa Falls.

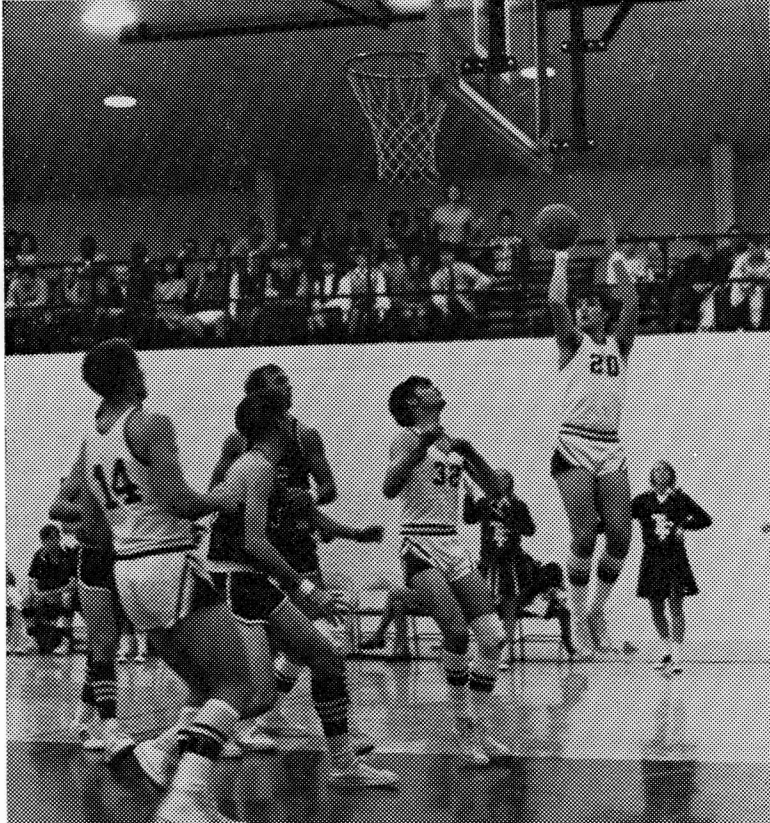

The Trojans hit 42 of 95 field goals and continually troubled their opponents with Coach Boner's run and gun style of ball. In addition to a height advantage the Trojans continually stole passes and broke up plays.

In the rebound department it was all Trevecca as they led 62-25. During the second half the story was the same and the final score was 97-52. High scorer for the Trojans was Charles Torain with 15, who was closely followed by Brent Godbey with 14. Every man on the entire team managed to put in at least one point with the exception of Mike Sexton who is out with an injury. Toccoa's leading scorer was Mills who hit for 17 and Coleman who hit for 14 points.

Boner commented that all of the players looked exceptionally good in spite of the Christmas layover and that Torain, Godbey, and Spencer were outstanding on the boards with their starting center, Mike Sexton, out. Boner stated that the extent of Sexton's injury was not known yet. It would be at least a month until he could return to the active list.

Boner also praised Mickey Johnson for his outstanding play and ability in bringing the ball down the court and setting up the plays.

Clyde Spencer, an outstanding player in last week's games against Toccoa Falls, shoots for two as the Trojans attain an 8-5 record.

Intramural Prospective

By Sharon Cronise

Winter quarter is here and along with it comes the intramural basketball season. The games for both the boys and girls will be played on Saturday this year with the female follies in the morning and the battle of the males — either brawn or skill—in the afternoon or evening.

Since the formation of the intercollegiate team, the societies seem to have a slack in interest. It is hoped, however, that the participation will be good for basketball, the favorite sport of the TAA members.

With the addition of new freshman faces on the court the outcome of the season's champs is hard to predict. Each team also has many returning from last year. Although many will not be playing for a society team, they can participate by supporting their society at each game.
