No Excused Absences

A special committee appointed to bring a report on attendance problems to the Academic Council has submitted the following report.

1. The college maintains that regularity in class attendance is essential for the realization of its educational goals. Responsibility for regular class attendance is placed upon the student.

2. There are no excused absences. All absences must be compensated for by assigned make-up work (absences beginning from the first day of the course) the type, amount and time of make-up work will be at the discretion of the teacher.

3. Students must recognize that absences may be reflected in a lowering of grades. Each absence in excess of the equivalent of one week's scheduled work (or credit hours) will incur a loss of grade at the rate of 1 letter value or equivalent per week's absence from class.

4. The faculty member is to be free to adjust his grade changes in the case of major emergencies which keep the student away for a week or more, such emergencies to be defined as (1) a prolonged illness under a doctor's care and with the doctor's signed statement that the student was unable to go to class, (2) death in the student's emergencies.

5. The teacher will keep accurate daily attendance records and report the totals on the grade card at the end of the quarter. The dean may call for a report at any time.*

* (1) The student is responsible for all class attendance from the first in each term. Absences due to late registration or delayed attendance fall under the rules proposed above.

(2) All extra-curricular activities such as Clean-up Day, Senior trip, Choir tours, etc., must be referred to the Dean of College for his approval and rulings. The make-up rule, however, is sustained whether or not the absence from class is approved by the Dean.

(3) The nurse will be on call by faculty members who wish to check with her opinion regarding a student who is absent. This does not require a written report. No student will go directly to the nurse for an attendance waiver.

The proposed policy was discussed in faculty meeting and tabled until a later date.

FROSH ORDER $1,800 BELL SYSTEM

Genie Hudson and Don Newell finalize the order for the carillon bells.

Public announcement has been made that the 67-68 Freshman Class has made the order for what has been described as, "the largest class project in the history of Trevecca." The project has been the purchase and installation of an electronic carillon bell system. The system will cost a total of $1,800.00 and will contain much versatility in its programming and operation.

The machinery for the carillons will be placed in the Administration building, with four bell horns to be placed on the roof of the structure. Programming will be on a twelve hour schedule for each day, with the hourly striking of time. The sound of the bells will be much like Westminster Chimes. Also included in the timing of the system are daily hymn concerts scheduled before Chapel and late afternoon with special Sunday concerts.

The complete system is being purchased from Bell Industries of Cincinnati, Ohio. The bells will be operated by electronic timing and taping devices. A variety of hymns will be supplied with seasonal music and the possibility of obtaining the school Alma Mater and Trevecca Hymn.

Cost of the project has been supplemented by: individual class pledges, class projects, dues, donations by individuals, and by donations from churches over the Southeast zone. Class officers made the appeal to the general class in December and asked for $5.00 pledges from each member. Many student members not only pledged but, made appeals to their home churches, bringing back both small and large contributions.

The entire carillon bell system is expected to be installed and operating by no later than the middle of May. When installation has been completed, the Freshman Class intends to present the bells to the college in a formal ceremony.

President of the Freshman Class is Jerome Hancock. David Dodge and Dennis Moore worked as Chairmen of the Finance and Project committees respectively.

Seniors Present "Night of January 16th"

In years past, there has been an all-school play presented by the student body as a whole. After the absence of such a play last year, the Senior Class has assumed the responsibility for the school play this year. They have chosen Ayn Rand's "Night of January 16th" which will be presented on May 10. The subject of the play is a murder trial, with each of the three acts representing a day of the trial.

The cast, according to director Karen Dean, will be composed for the most part of seniors, although underclassmen will also participate in the production. The leading female part, that of defendant Karen Andre will be played by Reatha Thomas, while Don Hastings will portray Flint, the prosecuting attorney. Jimmy Hodge takes the role of Stevins, the defense attorney.

Twelve members of the jury will not be chosen until the evening of the performance. Selected at random from the audience, these people will compose the jury who will listen to the evidence presented in the play and then render the verdict. The end of the play, the conviction or acquittal of Karen Andre, will thus be determined by members of the audience. During professional performances, such well-known people as Babe Ruth, Helen Keller, Jack Dempsey have served as jurors.

ATTENTION

Hurry that application if you are to be one of the outstanding musicians receiving a music scholarship to Trevecca next fall. Interested persons should call Dr. Aebischer at the Music Department; 244-6000, ext. 206 or 210. If distance is a problem an audition via tape recording is certainly acceptable. However, do not wait, make application now.

SOUTHERN ASSOCIATION VIEWS TREVECCA

A visiting committee from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools has been visiting Trevecca Nazarene College for the majority of the week. Its purpose is to study and evaluate the quality of Trevecca for membership into the Association. The committee will review all aspects of life at Trevecca and will make its recommendations to the organization in the latter part of the year 1968.

Trevecca has waited for this moment of evaluation since October, 1963, when an unofficial committee from the Association visited the school campus. With the report of this unofficial committee and new policies of the Southern Association the President of Trevecca appointed a council to do institutional research and planning. This council was to be responsible for conducting the new well know Self-Study of the school. Taking charge of all procedures was Dr. L. P. Gresham of Pasadena College who served during the academic year 1964-65.

In the fall of 1965 the Self-Study was completed and submitted to the Southern Association. On the basis of this study TNC was asked to submit a progress report to the committee on Admissions from the Association. A report was made and submitted in the fall of 1965 and the fall of 1966.

Dr. Charles Vail, Acting Executive Secretary on the Committee of Colleges, in April 1967, paid a personal visit to Trevecca. After examining the status report and other material he encouraged the college to file for formal application to membership of the Southern Association.

CHOICE '68 PRESENTS FINAL BALLOT

The nation's students have determined the final ballot and referendum issues of their first nationwide collegiate presidential primary, called CHOICE 68.

Meeting in Washington, D. C. from February 10-13, the program's student directors selected a slate of thirteen candidates for the presidency. They are: Fred Halstead, Mark Hatfield, Lyndon Johnson, Robert Kennedy, Martin Luther King, John Lindsay, Eugene McCarthy, Richard Nixon, Charles Percy, Ronald Reagan, Nelson Rockefeller, Harold Stassen, and George Wallace.

The students also decided that three referendum questions be included on the ballot. Two deal with the country's current involvement in Viet Nam, and one with the priorities of government spending in confronting the "urban crisis" Mr. Richard Scammon, Director of the Elections Research Center, and Dr. Howard Penniman of the Political Science Department at Georgetown University assisted the Board in their efforts to ensure that the various questions were properly phrased towards achieving maximum clarity.

In addition, the Board resolved several administrative questions, such as voter qualification. It was decided that any student currently enrolled in an American college or university will be eligible to vote in the CHOICE 68 election. This includes graduate, part-time, and foreign students, as well as those studying abroad in American branch universities.

ROLL CALL

It seems as if we get a new attendance policy almost every quarter at Trevecca. Every attempt has been made to do away with the loopholes in the present system. The most recent attempt at revision is actually a major overhaul. The only unchanged element is the underlying philosophy which may be summed up as "If you know what's good for you, you'll be in class."

Even though I'm not the recipient of an array of perfect attendance medals I am an advocate of compulsory attendance. The ideal that the student who has paid the tuition should decide whether or not he attends class sounds logical but, like the tenets of Fletcher's Situation Ethics, it credits the individual with positive motivations which are often not inherent to the necessary degree. My alarm clock weilds much more authority when it is supported by Miss McClain's reminders of approaching doom. A functional attendance policy is the involved student's greatest safeguard against a faulty sense of priorities.

The proposed policy sounds stiff with its boast of "no excused absences" but, in its practical workings, it extends student liberties considerably. Under the recommended penalty of one letter grade reduction for each three absences beyond the first week of absences in a three hour class, the "B" student could miss seven sessions and maintain a "C" while under the present regulation he would have been dropped on the fourth "unexcused" absence. With the allowances for extended illness and emergencies, the only drawback for the student appears to be the increase in the power of the individual teacher, especially in the required making up of work. The proposal is so ambiguous at this point as to allow a teacher to assign any amount of make-up work he deems necessary. This could be dangerous in the hands of one who cherishes an exalted view of the value of an hour at his feet.

We have all had professors who need no mandate to guarantee their students' presence in class. Their courses are structured so as to make what they say or do sufficiently interesting or necessary to pass the course (preferably both). Of course, we have all had those of that other breed who would lecture to vacant chairs where it not for the club they borrow from the Dean. Rehearsals of the textbook or endless incoherent repetitions of "delightful" personal anecdotes seldom challenge students. We might try a trial period of no attendance requirements just to separate the necessary from the needless.

It might also prove practicable if the faculty operated under the same "no excused absences" stipulation as the student body. Should revivals, meetings, jaunts and the other standard reasons be more acceptable for those who are being paid than for those who are "shelling out?" The "professional" has in some cases been a cover-up for the personal.

Anyway, you might as well plan to keep going to class.

The Candidates Speak

TNC's Men With A Message

Trevecca Nazarene College was voted a visitation committee to be on campus April 7-10. This committee is to make final evaluation of readiness for membership.

Anderson Resigns Effective August 31

William Anderson, Director of Development and Public Relations at Trevecca since 1963, has tendered his resignation, effective August 31. Anderson, who holds the A. B., B. D., and M. A. degrees has decided to pursue a doctoral program in counseling and guidance.

The five years Anderson served the college saw numerous advancements and expansion in the College's public relations program. This department now offers, in addition to church relations, a student recruitment program, a special endowment program, an active alumni office, a new bureau, student aid, and a development program.

Significant progress has been made in the development program. Two three story dormitories, and a science building have all been supported by federal funds. Large increases in federal aid to students have been procured. Close contact with corporations and foundations have been established. A $500,000 capital fund drive is now being conducted in the Southeast Educational Zone.

Announcing Anderson's resignation, Dr. Greathouse stated, "While much of his work has been behind the scenes and not apparent to the casula observer, he has pioneered quite effectively in setting up a development program for Trevecca. He has been largely responsible for the marked increase of support the College has received from the various federal programs, particularly in the area of student financial aids, and also in securing of grants for the science education building and the physical education center."

POLITICS IN THE NEWS

By Wayne Oldham

President Lyndon Johnson shocked the United States and the world on Sunday night, March 31, by stating, "I shall not seek and will not accept the nomination of my party for another term as your president."

Johnson said he decided not to run because, "With America's sons in the field far away, with America's future under challenge here at home, with our hopes - and the world's hopes - for peace in the balance every day, I do not believe that I should donate an hour of my time to any personal, partisan causes or to any duties other than the awesome duties of this office."

Earlier in his speech, Johnson announced that he was stopping nearly all air and sea action against North Viet Nam to try to bring about peace talks. He called this, "The first step to de-escalate the conflict."

Johnson's bomb-shell announcement raised the question of whether vice-president Hubert H. Humphrey will get into a scramble for the democratic presidential nomination. It puts in new light the nomination bids of Senator Robert Kennedy of New York, and Senator Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota.

Johnson also said that the U. S. troop level will be raised by 24,500 men to about 550,000.

The president did not say how long the pause in air and sea action would last. He said the halt applied everywhere except in the limited area north of the demilitarized zone, where many of the infiltration routes pass.

He said, "I cannot in conscience stop all bombing so long as to do so would immediately and directly endanger the lives of our men and our allies."

Johnson ended his speech and

Just A Thought

From Mildred Bangs Wynkoop

"Are you worrying enough?" would be an appropriate title to this discussion. But how could such a question be a proper one? Among the always provocative and usually startling things that Jesus said, the following may help to justify the lead question: "Take up the cross, and follow me" (Mark 10:20); "Think not that I am come to send peace on earth: . . . but a sword" (Matthew 10:34); and significantly, "You are salt to the world. And if salt becomes tasteless, . . ." (Matthew 5:13, The New English Bible*).

This is the problem: Life is full of trouble, conflict, tension, anxiety, fear. Not only is this true externally in our increasingly complex world-society, but also within ourselves we are disturbed, fearful, tense, unhappy. The mountains of "happiness pills" and anti-tension drugs which American people consume yearly testify to the problem, and many must seek medical help and the haven of a hospital. We must have peace or we shall forfeit our sanity.

The religion that can isolate and insulate the individual from frustration and awareness of trouble gains many followers. And religions that promise this--and perhaps accomplish it--are growing--phenomenally. These religions "save" the people from despair--but also from the challenge of Christ. A religion is an escape or opiate if its purpose and effect are to dull the sensibilities to moral conflict and responsibility.

Everything that the gospel of Christ stands for clashes squarely with any inferior notion of peace. It serves also as a wholesome criticism of us as "holiness people," as well as of non-Christian attempts to solve the human problem. It must not be forgotten that our personal peace with God, squaring us with Him morally, aligns us against everything that God is against, even those things in ourselves of which He does not approve. And it commits us to love that which God loves. Both of these things can be fairly disturbing, wholesomely and creatively, for a good long life.

Just as it is possible to take so many tranquility pills that the self-preservation faculty is impaired--"we don't worry enough"--so we may immaturely remain in the exquisite comfort of God's forgiveness and fail maturely to assume the responsibility which is our Christian obligation. "Come unto me, . . . and I will give you rest," is only preliminary to the terrible thrust toward the Cross, without which, Jesus said, we were not fit to be His disciples.

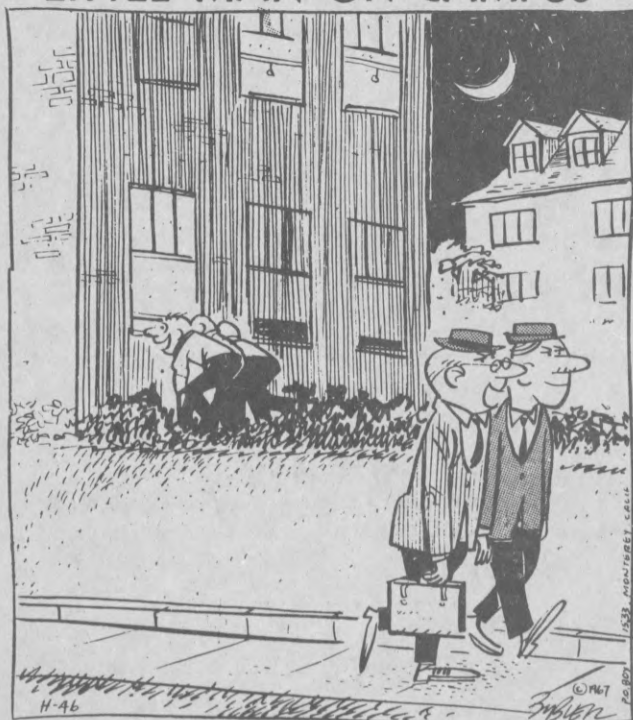

The conclusions are obvious and urgent. Sanctified Christians must bury themselves in the world of people. This costs dearly in physical and mental comfort and heart peace. It may kill us. It killed Jesus. We need to love people--sinners, not just the nice people who will do us no harm, but the profane people, the dancing people, the terribly irreligious people, the immoral people. And our love must be genuine, not a cheap disguise for foisting our opinions on them--not just the salesman's charm to anesthetize resistance. Nothing is more apparent--and more repulsive--to the "victim" than that double motive in a Christian.

Please come and sit down with me as we take inventory. How many friends do I have? How many of them are not nice? Do people outside the church like me or shun me? Have I ever deliberately sought the friendship of a dirty-mouthed person and patiently waited until the hard veneer breaks away to let him reveal, to me as a friend, the desperate torture of his broken heart? Have I ever been more interested in listening to the timid confidence wistfully offered by a lonely "wallflower" than in talking about myself? and preaching my sermon? Does my love to Christ and the world include only a few dollars given to missions? Am I salt or just a pretty saltcellar? A peace-seeker, or a peacemaker? A relaxed Christian, or a broken one?

Being a Christian is serious business. Let us pray: "O Christ, help me to worry enough. Let the needs of the world--and of my neighbor--bother me until I can never be quite comfortable again. Amen."

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"YOU'LL FIND THIS A PLEASANT CAMPUS -- LOADED WITH YOUNG EAGER INQUIRING MINDS."

Stuco Approves Dress-Up Night

Upon the request of Paul Thornhill; representative from the student body food committee, the Student Council approved a plan that would renovate the Wednesday evening meal in the college cafeteria. The motion passed (5-1) calls for the designation of Wednesday evening as "dress-up night" for the dinner hour. This will mean a coat and tie for the men and Sunday clothes for the ladies. To further enhance the atmosphere, plans call for a special meal to be served each week for this occasion, white table cloths, candles and the possibility of waiters serving restaurant style. Occasional live entertainment was also suggested as an added attraction. This will be under the direction of the food committee, and as further plans are made, they will be announced.

Further action by the council included approval of a request from the Freshmen Class to hold their own "clean-up day" for Wednesday, April 3 from 8:30 to 11:00 a. m.

President MacMillian urged that council members create an atmosphere of "positive thinking" for the time when the accreditation committee is on campus.

POLITICS IN THE NEWS Con't

signed off with "Thank you for listening. Good night and God bless you all."

Richard M. Nixon's campaign for the Republican nomination went back to the drawing board after President Johnson announced that he was not a candidate. Nixon's entire campaign has been directed against Johnson, and now Johnson is out of the picture.

The great party man that he is, Nixon always emphasized Republican unity. He never criticized fellow Republicans in his campaign. All of his attacks were against the President and his policies.

"The country is looking for new leadership, and I don't think the divided Democratic party can provide it," he said. "My plans will be to continue to meet with the Republican leaders throughout the country. We need a united party to give the country new leadership."

Nixon said, "I would be surprised if Hubert Humphrey did not enter the race." Over and over Nixon has stressed unity.

"One of the reasons Johnson felt he should not seek re-election was his divided party," Nixon stated, "I doubt that Bobby Kennedy can unite the Democratic party on the nation."

On President Johnson's decision to halt the bombing in North Vietnam, Nixon said that he would have his own statement on Vietnam very shortly, but added that he hoped that the present move would affect Hanoi in a positive way.

Senator Eugene McCarthy's young supporters acted like they had just driven President Johnson from the White House after Johnson's announcement. Senator McCarthy said that he believed that Vice President Humphrey, who has supported the President's policies, would become a candidate. He said that the New Hampshire primary and Wisconsin campaign showed that the "spirit of America is changing," and that this was sensed by the President. However, he said it would be unfair to conclude that the President withdrew because Johnson felt that McCarthy would defeat him in the Wisconsin primary.

Wall's Wall

The wall was paneled by the maintenance department upon the orders of the committee in charge of preparation for accreditation. The committee has been in operation about 60 days, making suggestions for improvements in the physical condition of the campus.

"Hey, doesn't it look better?" "It's got lakes and mountains beat all to pieces." So goes a typical cafeteria conversation. The student connoisseurs are talking about the new appearance of the rear wall of the cafeteria. The rich brown paneling and impressive plaque lend a collegiate air to the dining hall.

The plaque was designed by Mr. Howard Wall, who also designed the Trevecca emblem.

Chic

What's new for Easter? This year it's--petite flower prints, sweetest shifts trimmed with a frothy frill of ruffings, shirred coattresses, contrast collared and cuffed, shaped to fit and to flare.

The Spring suits are sporting new shapes. First, the short jacket...collared and skinny sleeved. The dirndl skirt...soft and slightly shirred. Second, the look of the 30's in the longer jacket with a limp look complemented by a skirt of swinging pleats.

This year's Spring accessories are...bright, squared off, patent shoes, coming in all colors...small, boxy handbags to match the shoes...hose that harmonize...and hats from tiny straw ones to huge flowered ones.

Any girl on campus will look chic in the 1968 Spring Easter outfits!

McCarthy said that he got a "double satisfaction" from the announcement. He stated that it not only removed his major obstacle in the campaign, but showed his criticism of Johnson's Vietnam policy was gaining support. "This changes the political picture in America for 1968," McCarthy said. He has a flair for understatement.

Senator Robert Kennedy, Boy Wonder of politics, said Monday that he has asked President Johnson to meet with him as soon as possible since the President has announced that he would not run. "I will continue my campaign for the presidency of the United States." I'm going to the American people as I have and present my views and ideas of what we need to do in our country," Boy Wonder stated. Later he added, "Wherever I go I find Americans of all ages, of all colors and political beliefs, deeply desirous of peace in Vietnam and desirous of reconciliation at home."

Former Alabama Governor George Wallace, Simple Simon

of Politics, says he believes President Johnson's decision not to seek reelection will improve his chances for victory in his third-party try for the Presidency. Simple Simon stated that he has never quarreled with Johnson's motives in Vietnam, although he has differed in many other areas. He added: "I certainly wish him well when he retires from the government." I'm not going to make any statement or remark that reflects on the President's decision." The former governor said that the presidency is "an awesome task," and that he is in the race to stay. He said that he is not running to throw the election into the House of Representatives. "Frankly, I don't think the election is going into the House. I think we're going to win."

"Greetings...you are ordered to report..."

SOFTBALL PROSPECT '68

Although the first games were rained out, Trevecca is looking forward to a successful softball season which presents each society with a 12 game schedule.

It is almost impossible to make any prediction as to the seasons outcome due to the vast talent represented in the Freshman class. However, pitching may be the key to championship; if so we can look to veterans such as the Gammas Larry Abbott or Cal Milam for the Betas. The Deltas have a strong defensive unit and their past play poses a large threat to take the title. The Alphas look OK in the hitting department but face the same problem as the Betas, lack of organization.

One thing is certain if the rain stops the Softball action will be as exciting as ever and all four societies should have an equal shot at the championship. The competition will be keen regardless of the caliber of play. This is Trevecca you know!

THE STUDENT BOD

By Dennis Moore

All the way from Nashville, Tennessee I bring to you the Student Bod with another column full of brand new knowledge. I would first like to remind you that TREV-ECHOES, for the remaining portion of the quarter, will be issued Tri-weekly. In other words we will try to get a paper to you every week.

My weekly visit of the campus (or was it a monthly visit) showed many new and wonderful happenings around the campus.

1. A new attendance policy has been initiated for next year promising all students that make-up work will be necessary for all absences. Incidentally there will be no more unexcused absences permitted.
2. The Freshman Class has made proclamation that an order has been placed for an $1,800 carillon bell system. Class officers have warned that all outstanding pledges should be paid, soon.
3. Lately there have been hints from the Business Office that final OK for the science building will be coming very soon. Also a surprise construction may be unveiled to the students soon.
4. Also from the so highly esteem office comes word that architects are now working on a student union building for a capacity of 1,200 students.
5. The Circle K Club is now in the process of initiating and welcoming four new members into the club.
6. The Student Aid office has now been moved down stairs in the Administration Building in the same place where the Chaplain was.
7. Trevecca is now involved in a new experimental program of using students to lead fellow students in discussion groups. Presently the History Department is using Macon Dew and Harold Smith in leading history discussion groups one day a week for Professor LeJune. Incidentally they are being paid for their services.

THE NO-CALORIE DIET

No fats, no carbohydrates, no proteins, no nothing. That's the kind of diet 10,000 men, women and children in underdeveloped countries are dying on every day.

Simply because there's not enough food to go around. And not enough know-how to grow more.

What you know about farming (or what we can teach you) can mean the beginning of the end of starvation to people in the 50 nations where the Peace Corps works. What you know about planting, for instance. Or irrigating or fertilizing or crop rotation or growing livestock. Or anything else you can help them help themselves with.

What will you get out of it? Two years of being completely on your own in a completely strange environment. Hard work and challenge and frustration. But maybe for a lot of people you'll have changed a diet of ignorance into one of knowledge. Sickness into health. Despair into hope. And can you think of a better diet?
