FISK SINGERS PERFORM TOMORROW

Selective Service Test Offered Again; Feb. 10 Deadline for Applying

RELEASE FROM STATE HEADQUARTERS, SELECTIVE SERVICE SYSTEM, STATE OF TENNESSEE

Young men planning to take the Selective Service Qualification Test in March or early April for possible student deferment should apply as quickly as possible, Arnold L. Malone, State Selective Service Director, said today.

This test is the same one offered last year and is being offered only to those young men who did not take the first test.

The deadline for applying for the test is midnight, February 10. Application cards for the test may be obtained from any local draft board, Malone said. The tests will be given March 11, 31 and April 18, at different colleges throughout the State.

"It seems to me there is a very practical reason for a young man planning to take the test to apply as early as possible," Malone said. "On the application card he is to list his choices of the three dates in the order of his preference."

"However," Malone said, "Science Research Associates, which is in charge of giving the test, will inform the applicant of the precise date he is to take it. It seems reasonable that those applying early will have a better chance of getting their first choice."

The test score—70 will be considered passing for undergraduate studies and 80 for graduate work—may be used by local boards as a guideline in determining student deferments.

Selective Service applicants are not required to take the test," Malone said. "It is strictly up to the individual concerned whether he takes it. However, if he doesn't his eligibility for a student deferment will then rest on his relative class standing among other male students in his particular college year at the college he is attending."

On the class standing basis, local boards will be asked to consider for further student deferment those who rank in the top half of their class, if a freshman; top two-thirds if a sophomore, top three-fourths if a junior; top three-fourths if a fourth year student in a five year course, and top one-fourth if a senior desires to take graduate work.

"Unlike college entrance tests, which may be taken more than once," Malone said, "the Selective Service Qualification Test may be taken only once, even though it will be offered each year. The score on the first test will stand throughout a young man's college career."

Malone has recommended that if you are in the first three years of college, or if you are a senior, or in the fourth year of a five-year course, take the test.

He said also two additional recommendations for local boards to follow are that the student be attending college on a full-time basis and making satisfactory grades toward graduation.

"In this connection," he said, "most colleges and universities consider that for their purposes, a student may be considered full-time if he is taking at least 12 hours or 75 per cent of the normal student load. "However," Malone added, "the American Council on Education and the American Association of Collegiate Registrars have collaborated in a statement to their members that for Selective Service purposes, 'A student certified as carrying a full-time course of instruction should be understood to be one carrying enough work to qualify himself for graduation in the usual length of time.'"

PROGRESS REPORT

An application for $150,000 to be used for the new gymnasium has been filed with the state of Tennessee. It would be a Federal grant administered at the state level. The college is awaiting a meeting to be held on the fifteenth of February to decide on any action concerning the application. If approved, immediate notification is expected.

Trevecca Nazarene College has received $700 from the Ford Foundation. Over 250 companies participate in a matching funds agreement with institutions of higher learning. Investigation on the part of laymen is encouraged in this area.

A total of $389,297 has been asked for Trevecca from the Federal Government. A breakdown includes $146,000 for N.E.D.A. loans, $115,400 for Educational Opportunity grants, and $127,647 for Work Study. This is the asking amount—an adjustment will be made by the government. In 1966, Trevecca received $293,564.

According to Factor Analysis at Vanderbilt University, the national average of college students needing financial aid is one out of twenty-five. For Trevecca, the average is four out of twenty-five. Readers are reminded that all money given to the Boosters' Club is used for student aid scholarships.

The closing date for current students who wish to make application for scholarships and other financial assistance is April 1, 1967. Applications may be secured in Mr. Anderson's office. Announcements of awards will be made sometime between May 15-20.

Remodeling of the studios for the F.M. educational radio station, WNAZ, is nearing completion. Equipment is arriving almost daily. The tower has been erected. Work is progressing toward the March 4th sign-on date.

SECOND TAS CONCERT FEATURES SPIRITUALS

Tomorrow night at 8:00 p.m. the Fisk Jubilee Singers will present a concert in the McClurkin auditorium. Their appearance marks the second presentation of the Trevecca Artist Series.

Hailing from Fisk University in Nashville, the Jubilee Singers was organized in 1871. Their first debut was in Cincinnati. A few weeks later, this little group of students from Fisk University made history by introducing the Negro spiritual to the musical world. Within months they were famous. New York critics hailed their songs as "the only true native school of American music," and promptly turned their series of concerts into a triumphal tour of American cities. Their reception in England, Holland, Germany and other European countries was even more ecstatic.

Yet, it is only now becoming possible to measure the full extent to which the music they introduced has influenced or permeated subsequent musical composition in America, popular as well as serious, and thereby put its mark on the culture of this century.

The present Jubilee Singers combine in their programs the rich and pure spiritual with folk songs from other countries and the music of the Masters.

Critics have lauded the contemporary group for "its beautiful homogeneity of tone . . . its euphony, perfection of nuance and precision"; its expressive, sympathetic and well-unified performance"; and for its "sensitive singing, that is also dignified and musicianly."

Some members of the group have not only had individual training, but a number of successful singing experiences as well.

Matthew Kennedy, director, joined the Music Faculty of Fisk University in 1954 and succeeded John W. Work as Director of the Jubilee Singers in 1957. Some years before, he traveled with the group and served as accompanist, while a student at Fisk.

He earned the A.B. degree from the University and the M.S. degree from Julliard School of Music, where he sang with the chorus under the direction of Robert Shaw.

He made his debut as a concert pianist at the Carnegie Recital Hall in New York and played at the National Art Gallery in Washington, D.C. Mr. Kennedy continues to concertize as a solo-pianist and as a duo with his wife, Anne Gamble, also a member of the Fisk Music Faculty.

The Fisk Jubilee Singers have represented the U.S. State Department on a tour of Europe. They have made one other appearance on the Trevecca Campus. The concert is free to full-time students and tickets costing $1.00 a piece will be on sale at the door.

Benson Lectures Begin Sunday

The Benson Lectures, featuring Rev. George Frame from Glasgow, Scotland, will begin this coming Sunday and continue through next week.

Dr. Frame was born in Gildersome, England, in 1921. In 1940, he was elected Superintendent of the British Isles District of the Church of the Nazarene. When the International Holiness Mission and the Calvary Holiness Church united with the Nazarene movement in 1956, he became superintendent of the Northern British Isles District.

Receiving his M.A. from the University of Glasgow, Rev. Frame became President of the Hurler Nazarene College in 1944. He served in that position until the college was moved to Didsworth, near Manchester, in 1959, and was renamed the British Isles Nazarene College.

In World War II, Rev. Frame was a member of the British Navy.

In addition to his other responsibilities, Rev. Frame has also served several terms on the General Board. Because he is a British citizen, Rev. Frame was permitted to enter Cuba and survey the work the national workers have been doing since the Communist takeover. He will report back to the Board on the conditions he found there.

The funds for the lecture series are provided in memory of the late Mr. John T. Benson, Sr., long a supporter and benefactor of Trevecca College, by his son, Mr. John T. Benson, Jr., of Nashville.

Dougharty Assumes Post As Estate Planning Director

Rev. W. T. Dougharty has joined the Administration as the full-time Director of Estate Planning. He assumed his duties January 1, 1967.

Rev. Dougharty was born in Bomont, Texas, and attended Bethany Nazarene College. He has pastored churches in Florida, Texas, and Illinois. His last pastorate before coming to Trevecca was in Harvey, Illinois.

Mr. Dougharty is married and has three children.

In October, 1966, Mr. Newell, Assistant to the President in charge of Fiscal Affairs, and Mr. William H. Anderson, Assistant to the President in charge of Development and Public Relations, contacted Mr. Dougharty concerning this position. In November, 1966, Mr. Dougharty visited the campus, and through a series of providential occurrences, accepted the offer. He became interested in estate planning in 1962.

President Greathouse and Dr. Stewart E. Fraser exchange greetings after the latter's recent chapel presentation concerning Red China and the Soviet Union. Dr. Fraser, a native Australian, is head of the International Center at George Peabody College. A world traveller, Dr. Fraser is on the TNC campus again today as guest lecturer for the 8, 11 and 1 O'Clock classes of Dr. Ernest Moore. Educational theories of the communist countries will be discussed. Professor Moore extends an invitation to interested persons to sit-in on these class sessions.

Mr. Dougharty describes his department as having "tremendous possibilities for the future of Trevecca Nazarene College. We will be working with a relatively untapped reserve of money." Before serving his first day in this position, Mr. Dougharty had received five inquiries.

The services of this new department are total. Mr. Dougharty will assist individuals in writing a will that will be legal in a court of law. This will be provided at no cost to the individual. Of course, it is expected that some of Mr. Dougharty's clients will remember Trevecca College, but they do not necessarily have to do so.

INVOLVEMENT

Trevecca College is undergoing change from a college family to a college community. The college has grown much as did our nation grow to the size and influence where isolation is impossible, impractical, and undesirable.

There are at least four areas of involvement in the community in which the contribution of Trevecca College is noteworthy.

First, let us consider the cultural community. The college for a number of years has offered the people of this area cultural opportunities and entertainment of a high caliber. Recently, the inauguration of the Trevecca Artist Series, bringing to the T.N.C. campus outstanding groups and individuals, has made an even more significant cultural contribution.

Second, T.N.C. is significantly involved in the business life of the Metropolitan Area. The real estate of the campus alone values well into the millions of dollars. Many businesses which supply and serve the Trevecca community profit from our existence. There are some, no doubt, whose profit-loss margin hinges upon Trevecca business. Several Trevecca graduates hold key positions in the economic life of this community.

Third, Trevecca has earned a place in the educational community of the Metropolitan area. Our education majors are sought after by school boards and superintendents, many finding responsible places of leadership in the Metropolitan-Davidson County School System. Our graduates are welcomed and generally recognized as good students at post-graduate institutions. Our professors are used in seminars such as the management seminar recently conducted in conjunction with the Pembroke Institute. The college offers to the residents of this area a quality liberal arts education at a cost considerably lower than some other educational institutions of this city.

And fourth, T.N.C. has since its beginning occupied a place of importance in the spiritual life of the community, not only through its witness as a Christian college, but also through organizations such as the C.W.A. Under the leadership of Carson Fluharty, the C.W.A. is re-evaluating its efforts and endeavoring to make the witness of the college more relevant to the people of this day. The gospel teams, under the supervision of the Chaplain's office, have the potential of presenting a positive spiritual image for the college through involvement programs.

It is our opinion that Trevecca is making a contribution worthy of commendation to this community. The recently presented gift of $2000 to the college by the 99ers Council for Business and Professional Development will be used by a joint committee of 99er members and college administrators, which have already been appointed by President Greathouse, to further the involvement of the college in the community and to encourage the support of Trevecca College by the community.

Through The Open Door

The percentage of young men who fail to qualify physically for military service has been alarmingly high, and warranted the attention of our president and his appointment of outstanding athletes to promote a national program emphasizing fitness. Such fitness is vital to our war effort and to the future strength of our nation. Trevecca's interest in a well-rounded physical education program attests our recognition of the worth of fitness; and we all anticipate the time when our gymnasium is in full operation and all of our students are involved in a program aimed at physical fitness. Such attention to the body is not out of line Scripturally, but rather it has strong endorsement in the Scriptures, and we have but to read I Corinthians 6:19 to catch one of Paul's insights into the importance of physical fitness to the Christian: "What, know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you . . . ?"

Also, Trevecca is committed to intellectual fitness, of course; for our college program is geared to mental improvement and enlargement, to education in balance. Therefore our professors are not content to pour facts into open minds that will return them in proper answers. Mental fitness is larger than the accumulation of information; it is more than stringing facts and figures on a memory line like so many intellectual beads. The learning process must relate itself to the person's philosophy, to his total approach to life, to the healthy construction of his mental constitution; and part of our task at Trevecca is to create a climate for mental fitness.

All this time, however, I have been remembering a fitness more important than those mentioned, spiritual fitness. And one should not be so involved in building those fitnesses that he neglects the spiritual, for such fitness cannot come automatically. It requires attention and application, as much as either of the others. It requires as much discipline. It comes with an attached price tag too. The routines of daily life call for spiritual involvement along with all the other obligations and interests and endeavors of the day. According to one translator, Paul wrote to the young man Timothy (whom he cared for like a son), "Take time and trouble to keep yourself spiritually fit." "Bodily fitness", he went on to say, "has a certain value, but spiritual fitness is essential both for this present life and for the life to come."

As you leave "Through the Open Door" today, take along my plea for fitness at Trevecca, will you, please?

History in the Making

—It was pointed out in a recent two-day seminar sponsored by the Nashville Education Association that the Nashville public school teachers are being integrated faster than those in the average American city.

—Peabody College has been awarded a $523,749 federal grant by the Office of Economic Opportunity. This grant is to be used for research on educating impoverished children and training teachers to work with these children.

—In a ruling which applies only to Cocke County, the State Supreme Court ruled that a judge does not necessarily have to be a lawyer in order to take office as a judge.

—David Nash, a prisoner at the state penitentiary, has figured out a new way to appeal for clemency. He sent Gov. Faubus of Arkansas a model ship with his serial number below the ship's name "U.S.S. Faubus."

—Tennessee's "Operation Crime Prevention" was adopted by the United States Department of Justice in Washington and was filmed in "color and sound" at the State Prison under the direction of Mr. Earl Schubert and Mr. Richard "Pek" Gun. This film is scheduled to become a part of a curriculum project program made available to all junior high and high schools in the United States.

—The Georgia assembly has named Lester G. Maddox, democrat, as that state's new governor. The Georgia Supreme Court ruled that the state legislature did have the right to settle the disputed election and name the new governor.

—It has been revealed in the National Council of Churches' "1967 Yearbook of American Churches" that, for the first time since 1961, church membership in the United States has fallen slightly behind the growth in national population.

—It is possible that "over-help" from Red China has led North Vietnam to seriously weigh the advisability of negotiating with the U.S. over the Vietnam war. This would indeed be an opportune time for Hanoi to make such a move since China's leaders are involved in dealing with political upheavals at home. However, many U.S. officials feel that the North Vietnamese statements may be a part of maneuvering to force a permanent unconditional halt to bombing of the North.

LETTERS

Dear Students:

I want to wish each and every student good luck this quarter, and I hope that each student will take it upon himself to bring the teachings of Christ into his life. Trevecca can teach you many things and one of them is how to know yourself better. I think every student should really try to know him-or herself. While at Trevecca above all remember one thing and that is that Trevecca is like a bank. What you put into it you will get out. That holds true for your religious life and your academic life.

I only wish I could leave the navy now and return to Trevecca tomorrow. I would be the first one to class and the last one out. I would be the first to chapel and the last to leave. This may seem hard to believe. Well, you haven't been in the navy and missed what Trevecca has to offer like I have. Don't take Trevecca for granted.

For those who remember me, my address is:

Ed Scibilia "S" Division
USS Bordehon DD 881
c/o F.P.O. New York, New York

I want to wish everyone a happy holiday, for all the upcoming holidays, because I will spend all my holidays in different countries.

Good luck to all.
Yours truly,
Ed Scibilia

P.S. I was a Catholic before I came to Trevecca. Now I'm becoming a Nazarene.

Dear Editor:

Why is the Church of the Nazarene losing its young people? The answer is obvious. We are losing them because of a breakdown of communication. We are no longer speaking to them in their language, or in the light of current events and travels.

Wives Meet

The Student Wives have been busy planning new and interesting meetings for the coming year. The meetings are held monthly on the second Thursday of each month. If you are attending Trevecca or your husband is, you are welcome to join the ranks of the Student Wives. If you want to receive notice of the meetings please put your name and post office box number in Box 32 and it will be attended to. Now let's see what's been happening at the meetings that have been had so far.

The first meeting held at the home of President and Mrs. Greathouse, commenced with some get-acquainted games. Then the election of officers took place. The following were elected: President—Carolyn Ries, Vice-pres.—Charlotte Staubbs, Sec.—Treas.—Gail Jenkins, Reporter—Pat Cooper. Mrs. Greathouse is the sponsor and Mrs. Elmer Heberlin is the co-sponsor. At this meeting long range plans were discussed.

The October meeting was held at the home of Sonja Wells, 66 Nance Lane. This was the scene of a fun-filled Halloween party. The husbands attended, bringing more excitement to the gathering. Everyone was asked to wear a costume or at least a mask for disguise. Those who did not do so were called upon to unmask the others after guessing who each one was. Following the games, a brief devotional was given and then refreshments were served. Everyone made his own doughnuts and cider was served. Needless to say, it was an enjoyable evening.

In November, the Student Wives held their meeting at Mrs. Heberlin's home. They were kept busy making Santa Claus favors out of baby food jars. The tops were covered with red flannel caps and the sides of the jars were decorated with Santa's features, also made of flannel. The jars were then filled with Christmas candy to be taken to a Nursing Home for the Elderly in this community.

The last meeting of the Student Wives for the year 1966 was held at the Greathouse home. The student wives were asked to make something to be shared for a Christmas gift. The ideas ranged from baked goods to decorations, but each one was interesting. These gifts were exchanged and the ones receiving them shared the recipe or directions. Many Christmas ideas were displayed at this meeting.

There are two ways in which we, as a church, can react, to this. We can lose ourselves into a shell and refuse to change. Or we can recognize the problem and try to speak to the youth of our nation in such a way that they can understand. I feel that the second choice is the only course open.

We must train our pastors so that they will be able to speak to the youth in the way needed. We also need to try radically new ideas of evangelism.

One that is well worth our attention is the method used by an Episcopal minister. He goes into night clubs and hang-outs of young people and explains and preaches a gospel in their language. He has also recorded some modern language prayers.

We must take a good look at our Manual. I feel that it needs many revisions and rephrasings. As someone has said, "We are fighting a 1967 Devil with a 1928 church." The world does change, and we must change with it. We can change and not lose that which sets us apart.

By doing this, we follow the example of Jesus. He went into the world and put into words and actions of that time what He had to say. If we do not do something, we stand in danger of losing our battle with evil.

TCN's FIRST LADY DISCUSSES HER ROLE

Behind every successful husband there is usually an equally successful wife. This is no less true of President William Greathouse and Mrs. Greathouse.

Born into the family of Mr. and Mrs. George Nesbitt, Mrs. Greathouse has two sisters and a brother. Her first home was McEwen, Tennessee, but the family moved to Paris, Tennessee, where Mrs. Greathouse attended school and graduated as valedictorian of Grove High School. After attending Toler Business College she worked in the law office of Mr. Fisher Neal, father of pianist Harry Neal of the Nelson and Neal piano team who recently performed on campus.

An active young person in the Paris Church of the Nazarene, Mrs. Greathouse helped with the music; worked with children's groups. She helped Rev. and Mrs. Earle Vennum for two weeks with the music program during the six-week home mission campaign in which the Jackson, Tennessee, Church of the Nazarene was organized. There she met Dr. Greathouse's parents. Although she did not meet their son, it was later in this campaign that he was converted.

A year later Dr. Greathouse met his future wife in a revival service in her home church in Paris. After the service Dr. Greathouse came down and introduced himself to the young lady who had sung in the choir that evening. They started corresponding and seeing each other in zone rallies and other church events. On December 20, 1938, two weeks after Dr. Greathouse had been appointed pastor of the Jackson Church, they were married.

They remained in Jackson until Dr. Greathouse graduated from Lambuth College in 1941.

Mrs. Greathouse has worked closely with her husband in all of his pastorates. These churches included Franklin, Nashville Immanuel, Clarksville First, and Nashville First. Mrs. Greathouse taught in the Sunday school, assisted with the music, and fitted in where she was needed most. She felt that her first duty as a pastor's wife was to make the parsonage home happy.

A versatile lady, Mrs. Greathouse's hobbies include sewing, raising African violets, hat making, cooking, flower arranging, reading, and growing a vegetable garden every spring. She also enjoys entertaining and usually prepares the dainties for faculty teas and other official events.

Homemaking is Mrs. Greathouse's career. As she stated, "A President must have a home." She sponsors the Student Wives' Association and attends functions where the presence of our first lady is desired.

At Christmas time Mrs. Greathouse sponsors the annual Christmas party for the faculty and administration children under twelve years of age.

Mrs. Greathouse finds the role of being the wife of a college president very challenging and very interesting. She discovered it a thrill to be contributing to the education of young people. The thing that causes her to grieve, she stated, is to see a college student fail to make a success of his college career.

But she also feels that a college should not be blamed for the improper adjustment of some of its

The problems young people have today, Mrs. Greathouse believes, are not completely caused by themselves, but are a result primarily of a breakdown of adult relationships. "Adults should set an example by believing in young people and having their interest at heart," she stated. She is disturbed that the role of Christian young people and their qualifications are being overlooked.

The mother of three children—Becky (Mrs. T. E. Martin, Jr.), Mark and Beth—Mrs. Greathouse thinks it is important for parents to love, believe in, and trust their offspring. She also thinks parents should give their children reasons for believing the things they do. The Christian faith should early be instilled into children. They should be taught that the Christian life is the best way to live. This way of life cannot be forced upon them but they must discover for themselves the goodness of this way by their own voluntary commitment to Christ and His principles.

PEACE CORPS REPORTS SUCCESS

A recent survey (reported in Part One) indicates that college seniors, anxious to begin a career, do not regard Peace Corps service as aiding their long-term career goals. Below, the second in a two-part series examines the influence of Peace Corps service on career choices made by 7,000 returned Volunteers and explains why half of them are back in the classroom.

Once upon a time there was no such thing as a returned Peace Corps Volunteer.

Not until 1963 did the first crop of Volunteers begin returning to the U. S. after completing their two-year tours. In the interim, the Peace Corps' "task force" administration eagerly sought reports from the field and "Washington types" (in Volunteer argot) probed about overseas to see firsthand what their creation was doing.

That was three years ago. Since then, more than 10,000 volunteers have completed service, but almost as soon as they reappeared on the American scene, there were a few overly-publicized cases of "reverse culture shock." Some ex-Volunteers reported difficulty in getting satisfying jobs and some complained that no one understood what they had experienced overseas.

From this developed the well-circulated, but unfounded myth that Peace Corps Volunteers are an odd lot of young, directionless people not really qualified to do much of anything.

Those, however, who had jobs and money to hand out—graduate schools, Federal agencies, international business firms, school superintendents, and non-profit organizations—felt differently. As returned Volunteers became available, the Peace Corps established its own Career Information Service to channel to returnees the growing number of requests from all quarters for former Volunteers.

The Peace Corps experience appears to be making a visible impact on the career choices of Volunteers by steering them more and more towards education and government employment.

Among the first 7,000 Volunteers to return to the U. S., just over half either are continuing their college studies, mostly for graduate degrees, or teaching. Another 12 per cent are working with several Federal agencies here and abroad.

Of all Volunteers return to school: 93 per cent have had previous college education. (Many, indeed, regard Peace Corps service as a convenient and valuable breathing period between undergraduate and graduate study.) Another 54 per cent change career plans during their two years overseas, often necessitating further study.

With about 55 per cent of all Volunteers serving as teachers, it is evident that Peace Corps service is stimulating returnees to enter the teaching profession at home. Seventeen per cent of all returned Peace Corpsmen are working in classrooms, from grade school to college, often using knowledge and methods developed overseas. Many of these Volunteers-turned-teachers report that their Peace Corps experience decided them to make teaching a career.

The back-to-the-classroom trend is being fostered by colleges and local authorities which are providing increasing incentives in the form of financial aid, teaching accreditation and salary credits.

In 1966-67, 69 colleges and universities offered 322 scholarships, assistantships and fellowships (available only to returned Volunteers) and 14 cities and states—including New York, California and Missouri and the New York City Board of Education—have offered special teaching certificate waivers and adjusted salary scales to former Volunteers.

Federal agencies, particularly those with overseas operations, have been quick to attract ex-Volunteers. The Peace Corps itself fills more than 300 of its Washington-based and overseas positions with returnees; 131 work with the Agency for International Development, including several on assignment in Southeast Asia; 45 are engaged in the War on Poverty; and 19 and 16 respectively serve as Foreign Service Officers and with the United States Information Agency.

Volunteers also are seeking—and getting—positions with a wide range of voluntary, domestic and international organizations, such as C.A.R.E., the United Nations, the African-American Institute, the National Teacher Corps, Bureau of Indian Affairs, Catholic Relief Services and The Asia Foundation.

Unfairly branded a few years ago as skeptics, the business world also has been showing marked interest in Volunteers (whom it recognizes as having gone through not only an unusual maturation process but a rigorous selection). Twenty per cent of employed Volunteers work for American business organizations, from promoting college textbooks to architectural designing. Most are employed in administrative, consulting, engineering, scientific and sales positions.

More than 100 international and overseas firms have sought to hire returned Volunteers for positions abroad in several fields. Returnees presently are working in mining, construction, sales, marketing and management overseas.

Despite rising numbers of applications from college seniors in 1966, Peace Corps recruiters still report difficulty in convincing many students of the relevance of Peace Corps service to their long-term career goals.

Because Volunteers have been re-entering American society for only three years, there is little evidence that the Peace Corps can cite in support of "relevance" beyond the conviction of the Volunteers that the two years are valuable and well-spent.

But the statistics are encouraging. So are the sentiments of the Volunteers themselves. Said one: "You can't make a career out of the Peace Corps, but you should make the Peace Corps part of your career."

CWA HOLDS SEMINAR

Shortly before the Christmas recess the Christian Workers' Association sponsored a training seminar at the College Hill Church of the Nazarene. The purpose of the seminar was to instruct Christian workers in ways to improve their effectiveness by the different works sponsored by the C.W.A.

Four areas were covered in the meeting. A student representative and a faculty representative for each branch of the C.W.A. work—jails, rest homes, hospitals, and street services—guided the discussion. Each faculty and student representative spoke on the best way of presenting Christ to people in these areas. Those attending chose the area most interesting to them and attended that session.

There are several works involved in each area. These include Jail-penitentiary, juvenile court, workhouse, Metro jail; Friday and Saturday street services; Agee and Grace Rest homes; and General and Meharry hospitals.

Participants in the program were Tom Cook, Mary Van Reenan (students) and Rev. Woods from Trinity Church of the Nazarene, chaplain of the state penitentiary—Jails; Michael Ross and Dr. John A. Knight—Street Services; Bill Johnson and Dr. Lloyd B. Byron—Rest Homes; and Carson Fluharty and Prof. Ray Dunning—Hospitals.

After the sessions refreshments were served. A devotional period closed the seminar.

Carson Fluharty is the president of the C.W.A., and Dr. Knight is the sponsor.

FRESHMEN BEGIN SCRAPBOOK

by JoAnne Fulwood

After one quarter of classes, chapel, clean-up day, programs, Christmas parties, Christmas parties, and more Christmas parties, the Freshman class is beginning to adjust to college life.

The New Year has brought back wonderful memories and at the same time, caught us day-dreaming of future events. To retain these fond memories which encase our first year of college, we have decided to keep a scrapbook.

The scrapbook will contain events in which the Freshman have participated. Events such as recognition week, class chapels, clean-up day, special projects, the Christmas party and all future events. It will also contain snapshots which we hope will bring back many memories.

We are in the process of collecting material and we hope that this project will become a tradition with each Freshman class.

Girls basketball games are now resuming, though we are getting off to a fairly slow start. The first real game of the season was held January 5th at the First Church Gymnasium. This was a game between the Delta and Beta girls. However, due to the fact that the Betas didn't have enough players, the game was forfeited to the Deltas.

We know that there are many conflicts that occur on the nights that girls' games are played, but we urge you who can make it to support your teams. Some girls have classes and cannot possibly attend the games, but if you don't, please make a big effort to attend these games. We need you!

In case you are in doubt concerning the games, and when they are going to be played, please keep the schedule with you so you can plan ahead of time to play at your game. If you can't play, get in touch with your Society leader, or basketball captain so they can plan for someone else to play in advance.

We really want to make our basketball games worthwhile, so please attend every game possible. This is a schedule of the games which are to be played during the rest of the basketball season:

TUESDAY

- Dec. 6 Beta vs Alpha
- 13 Gamma vs Alpha
- Jan. 3 Alpha vs Delta
- 10 Gamma vs Alpha
- 17 Beta vs Gamma
- 31 Gamma vs Delta
- Feb. 7 Delta vs Beta
- 14 Alpha vs Delta
- 20 Beta vs Alpha

THURSDAY

- Dec. 8 Delta vs Gamma
- 15 Beta vs Delta
- Jan. 5 Gamma vs Beta
- 12 Beta vs Delta
- 19 Delta vs Alpha
- Feb. 2 Beta vs Alpha
- 9 Alpha vs Gamma
- 16 Gamma vs Beta
- 23 Delta vs Gamma

Games will start at 5:30. Both teams must be ready to play by then or the game will be forfeited. Tournament Game will be scheduled later.

Basketball SCOOP

Gammas Top Alphas 70-61

Led by Don Wiley and Bob Salser the Gammas picked up its second straight win over the Alphas.

The Gammas jumped to an early lead and were never headed the rest of the game although the Alphas tied the score several times and kept close the whole way.

Both teams were hurt by fouls. The Alphas hopes faded when John Maxwell fouled out early in the fourth quarter.

The victory kept the Gammas in a tie for first place with the Deltas.

Deltas Stomp Betas 65-38

The Deltas had little trouble with the Betas enroute to their second straight victory.

Led by Jim Hendershot's 27 points the Deltas jumped to an early lead and, all but for a late second quarter surge, ran wild against the Betas.

The victory kept the Deltas in a first place tie with the Gammas.

Deltas

Now that the Christmas holidays are over, and everyone has gotten back into the swing of things, the basketball season will resume. We are indebted to the officials of Calvert Jr. High School for lending us their facilities. If you would like to go to the games but don't know how to get there, you may see Ozzie Smith at the Security Police Office and he will give you a map giving directions to the gym.

The girls' basketball games are held at First Church gym. All girls should get out and play or go to the games and support your team.

The boys' basketball teams look very sharp in their new uniforms. I have failed to mention this before in previous articles, but they are a great improvement to our league.

Let me urge all those who do not participate in some sport to go to the games and support your respective teams. I know the players would appreciate it, and it is a great boost to their morale to hear cheering fans urging them on from the sidelines.
